INDIA CRISIS NEAR CLIMAX

President Roosevelt May Address Plea in Effort To Prevent Rupture.

By The Associated Press

A deadlock in the crisis arising from India's demand for immediate independence from Great Britain appeared inevitable today amid conjecture that President Roosevelt might address an eleventh-hour appeal to India not to complicate "the task of those who are fighting for the preservation of human freedom."

The quotation is from Secretary of State Hull's recent broadcast, in which Mr. Hull, without mentioning India by name, emphasized that American sympathy for freedom-seeking peoples was reserved for those who "by their acts show themselves worthy of it."

In a session starting tomorrow, barring a last-minute compromise the All-India congress is expected to authorize Mohandas K. Gandhi to lead India's 390,000,000 in "a mass struggle on non-violent lines on the widest possible scale" against British rule.

The chances of a solution appeared meager.

In London, Sir Stafford Cripps, lord privy seal and Prime Minister Churchill's deputy in parliament, declared firmly that Britain intended to "preserve law and order" in India until after the war.

"The hard facts of war make a complete change (in India's government) impossible at the moment," Sir Stafford said.

In Bombay, the All-India congress working committee was equally adamant, declaring it was hopeless to appeal to Britain again. Bombay observers agreed that the program for a mass civil disobedience campaign was almost certain to be ratified by the All-India congress tomorrow.

In Washington, the state department watched the ominous turn of events closely.

Officials avoided comment, however, either on India's proposal of whole-hearted cooperation with the allies if independence is granted, or on Britain's charges that Gandhi and most of his colleagues were "appeasers" of Japan.

Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, former president of the All-India Congress party, told an audience of 10,000 Indians in Bombay that "the first step should be for Britain to withdraw," but declared this did not mean that allied armies should leave India.

Sisters Celebrate Event at First Big Birthday Party; Entertain 25.

Marion's only triplets, Jane, June and Jene Cratty celebrated their fifth birthday anniversaries today.

The three girls, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Loy A. Cratty of 514 Blaine avenue, were to mark the event by entertaining approximately 25 of their young friends at a party this afternoon. They were to share their large birthday cake with their guests.

They were all quite excited over their first large party, and especially about their new organdy dresses for the occasion.

Little Difference in Size

The three differ very little in size. Jene and Jane each weighs 38 pounds and June is two pounds heavier.

Jane, who has always been a little shorter than the other two, is 36 inches tall while Jene and June measure 40 inches.

All three are friendly, but Jane talks the most freely. June is the most curious of the three. She must always know "why." Mrs. Cratty said although they copy each other a great deal, Jene shows more independence than the other two.

"Most of their time is spent playing with their dolls, doll buggies and their pet cat, Rascal," Mrs. Cratty said. Rascal is a large gray and white pet which came to the Cratty home about a year ago. He patiently lets the girls pet him and carry him around.

Seldom Ill

The only sickness the triplets have ever had occurred this summer when Jane was ill for several weeks, but she is much better now.

Next Sunday Jane, June, and Jene will each drop five pennies in the Sunday School birthday box at Oakland Evangelical church where they attend regularly.

The three blue-eyed youngsters all enjoy singing and are beginning to show talent along that line. Their tastes and desires are all quite similar with minor differences.

SEEKS $10,000 FOR BURNS ON FACE

Charges Delaware Co. Men Held Match Against Him.

DELAWARE, O., Aug. 6—Damages of $10,000 as compensation for injuries allegedly suffered at the hands of a Delaware county father and son are sought in a suit filed yesterday in Delaware county common pleas court by John Wolford, 21, of Canton, against Murlin Stults and his son Newton of near Warrensburg.

Wolford alleges that he suffered painful injuries and permanent disfigurement when the defendants held him and applied a lighted match to his face after their automobiles figured in an accident one and a half miles south of Bellpoint early Sunday morning. According to the petition, Wolford attempted to secure the keys of the Stults car to prevent the two men from driving away from the scene of the accident.

The plaintiff also charges that both men were intoxicated and that their condition was responsible for the collision. According to Wolford's account, he reached into the Stults car as the men were preparing to drive away and was seized by the son, whereupon the father struck a match and held it to the plaintiff's face. He suffered severe burns on the lip and right side of the face, according to the attending physician.

Wolford, who is expecting a call to military service this month, was compensated for damage to his car by the company with which Stults was insured, his attorney said. The case will be tried by the fall term of court.

FACTORY HEADS OF AREA STUDY DRAFT RULES

Meet in Marion To Hear State Officials Discuss Work Deferments.

Emphasizing the role of the employer in the present-day draft policy, Col. Furman G. Spencer and Lt. John J. Nolan of state selective service headquarters spoke to a group of 70 industrial representatives and members of selective service boards from Marion, Morrow, Crawford, Wyandot, Delaware and Hardin counties at Hotel Harding last night.

The meeting, sponsored by the Marion Chamber of Commerce, was called for the purpose of clarifying the selective service act especially as it applies to industry and industrial deferment.

Col. Spencer, speaking as a representative of the state selective service director, outlined the operation of the general selective service act and set forth the national, state and local phases of the administration of the act.

Three Major Policies

He enumerated the following three major policies of the act: (1) to provide sufficient men for the armed forces; (2) to provide sufficient men for the war production effort and (3) to protect bona fide families and others with legitimate cause for deferment.

Col. Spencer described the present occupational deferment policy followed by selective service officials as "an indirect method." Here he digressed to point out the difference between the terms "deferment" and "exemption." He said all too frequently the terms have been confused; there are no exemptions, he said, except those as specifically provided for in the act itself. And in no case, he declared, is any deferment, occupational or otherwise, to be considered to bear any degree of permanency.

In considering occupational deferment classifications and reasons for such classification, Col. Spencer explained the requisites for these cases.

"2-A and 2-B," he said, "are the classifications. In 2-A, a man must be employed in an activity directly supporting the war effort. In 2-B, he must be in a critical occupation in a war activity as such."

Up to Boards

Col. Spencer listed such activities as the production of food, clothing, shelter, etc., as industries which may be considered to be in support of the war effort. He said the board bears the burden of determining a man's classification on the basis of the above two considerations. He further clarified the conditions by emphasizing the importance of realizing that an activity is not an occupation, but that occupations are within activities.

He said neither local boards nor even the national or state headquarters are the arbitrary judges as to what occupations constitute a basic for deferment, but that trade associations had cooperated in themselves formulating the lists which they considered essential or critical in the war industry.

He said that in his opinion about 98 per cent of the requests for employe deferment submitted by the employer are vague and do not contain sufficient information for an equitable consideration of the case. He charged employers in general with failure to

Three More Companies on Payroll Bond List

Two industries and a utilities company yesterday were certified as having 90 per cent of the employes on the payroll savings plan of purchasing war bonds and stamps, the Marion county war stamp and bond staff announced today.

The additions bring to 25 the total of Marion concerns now operating on the payroll savings plan.

The industries are the Universal Cooler Corp. and the Osgood Co. The utilities concern is the Ohio Fuel Gas Co.

War Stamp, Bond Sale Is $53,258 Over Quota

Sale of corporation bonds through the federal reserve bank in Cleveland the last week of July put Marion county $53,258.50 over its July quota of $293,800 in war stamps and bonds, the Marion county war stamp and bond staff announced today.

The federal reserve bank statement of Marion sales of corporation bonds was received this morning. The sales totaled $28,302 from July 24 to 31.

The bank report boosted the grand total of sales for the county to $367,058.50 in July.

92 Families Seek in Vain To Rent Living Quarters

Marionites who have furnished and unfurnished apartments or houses to rent were urged today to register them with the civilian defense homes registration office at 116 North State street.

There are 92 applications on file at the office which as yet have not been filled and more applications are being made every day. Fifty-three of the applications are for furnished apartments or houses and 39 are for unfurnished units.

Registration of light housekeeping rooms also should be made, Louis Michel, director of housing registration said in discussing the

PHONE DISPUTE SPREADS TODAY

Service Impaired as Operators Refuse To Pass Picket Lines.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Aug. 6 — Telephone communications in northeastern Ohio were impaired today as more than 200 women operators employed by the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. refused to pass picket lines of maintenance, installation and repair workers striking for higher pay.

The sympathy walkout so crippled service in some of the 25 outlying Cleveland exchanges and at Akron, Canton and Youngstown that some operators were instructed to go through the picket lines against their will, said Mrs. Therese Donehey, president of the Cleveland Traffic Council of the Ohio Federation of Telephone Workers.

Mrs. Donehey reported at least 200 main office operators had gathered in council rooms instead of reporting for duty between 7 and 8:30 a. m. A majority of operators in outlying Cleveland exchanges also refused to cross picket lines, she added, but asserted essential service would be maintained. The operators recently asked $5 weekly increase in wages now ranging from $16 to $29 a week.

This development followed an assertion by a spokesman for the plant council, representing maintenance, installation and repair workers, that the war labor board's attempt to end their strike had confused the issue.

Says Issue Confused

I. R. Hudson, president of the plant council, said that the WLB had confused the issue by sending identical telegrams to the

SOLUTION OF STEEL PROBLEM IS SOUGHT

Senate Looks Into Cancellation of Higgins Contract.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6—Senate advocates of a cargo-carrier expansion program that would defeat the submarine menace searched today for a solution of the steel problem, which led the maritime commission to swamp the plan of A. J. Higgins, New Orleans shipbuilder, to make 200 liberty ships.

The defense investigating committee called Reese Taylor, chief of the iron and steel division of the war production board, to tell what he could of the steel supply and allocations.

Chairman Truman, Democrat of Missouri, meanwhile, condemned the navy department's bureau of ships for "negligence and wilful misconduct" in dealing with a "vehicle important to the success of any invasion attempt."

He transmitted a committee report to Secretary of the Navy Knox as a basis for his charges, leaving it to the navy to decide whether the report should be made public.

Truman also accused the bureau of ships of "biased and prejudiced treatment" of the Higgins industries in insisting that the shipyard use models of the bureau's design "despite the repeated failures thereof." Whether he referred to the Liberty ships, or to other boats that have been built by Higgins was not stated.

"That the war effort has not suffered an irreparable injury is due largely to the ability and energy of Higgins Industries, Inc., and to its repeated criticism of the the shortcomings of the designs prepared by the bureau of ships," the Truman letter to Secretary Knox said.

RED RESERVES MOVING INTO BATTLE AREAS

Russians Strengthen Forces in Effort To Save Stalingrad.

MOSCOW, Aug. 6 — Russia's carefully saved reserves were moving into the battle today as Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's troops fought back bitterly against a new threat to Stalingrad on the battleground where the fledgling Red army made history in the 1917 revolution.

Dispatches which indicated for the first time that the reserves were going into action against the terrific German offensive said the battleline apparently had been stabilized at both flanks—near Kletskaya, 80 miles northwest of Stalingrad, and Kushchevka, on the Yeya river, 50 miles south of Rostov.

The line still sagged, however, under the weight of Nazi numerical superiority in the Belaya Glina sector, 100 miles southeast of Rostov, and near Kotelnikovski, south of the Don 95 miles southeast of Stalingrad.

Nazis Claim City Taken

(The Germans reported the capture of Tikhoretsk, on the Caucasian railway 40 miles southwest of Belaya Glina and about the same distance southeast of Kushchevka).

On the Stalingrad front, Kotelnikovski itself still was in Russian hands but was under German attack. The fighting switched there from Tsimlyansk where the Red army for two weeks had held the Nazis on the banks of the Don.

The army newspaper Red Star said the situation on the southern flank below Belaya Glina and Kuschevka continued grave, with the Germans making new dents in Russian defense lines.

The most violent battle was in progress in the Belaya Glina sector where the Germans have driven closest to the oil fields of Malkop, some 120 miles farther to the southwest.

The hard-put Russians were bolstered further by the arrival in Moscow of Major General Follett Bradley, of the United States air forces, to facilitate American aid to the Red Army.

Deeper in the Caucasus, Russian troops fighting a delaying action below Belaya Glina, 100 miles southeast of Rostov, made a new withdrawal yesterday while in the Kuschevka area, 50 miles south of Rostov, Cossacks were reported inflicting heavy losses upon Nazi air-borne tanks and parachutists who descended behind Russian lines in groups of 100 and 150.

Red Forces Withdraw

The mid-day Soviet communique said that last night Red forces in the Belaya Glina sector made a fighting withdrawal to new positions and that in Kushchevka area Soviet anti-tank gunners and "tank busters" destroyed eight Nazi tanks and 25 other vehicles.

Soviet defenders continued to hold firmly to their positions on the Kletskaya front.

Fighting has erupted on the long-dormant Bryansk front 210 miles southwest of Moscow, and the Soviet announcement said Red army forces recaptured a village there.

Elsewhere in the north Caucasus the Russians said inconclusive fighting continued.

A Berlin radio broadcast said German troops occupied the town of Tikhoretsk on the Caucasian railway about 90 miles south of Rostov.

"No Surrender" Is Dutch Motto, Queen Tells Congress

Dutch Ruler in Washington Addresses Joint Session of House and Senate.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6—Wilhelmina of The Netherlands, the first queen in her own right to visit the United States, told congress today that "No surrender" remains the motto of her people, suffering though they are under the alien rule of an invader in Asia and in Europe.

The grandmotherly monarch, addressing a joint session of the house and senate, said: "Imagine what it means for a liberty-loving country to be in bondage, for a proud country to be subject to harsh alien rule.

"What would be the American answer if an invader tried to cower his wholesale systematic pillage with the firing squad, the concentration camp and the abomination of the hostage practice?"

The 61-year-old queen, who issued a proclamation of "flaming protest" and sent her armies into battle when the German forces invaded Holland in May, 1940, continued:

"I doubt not that your answer would be: resistance, resistance until the end, resistance in every practicable shape or form.

"This is exactly the answer my people have given, and are giving every day. Inside occupied territory and outside, the fight goes on."

The Netherlands government forced to flee has set up headquarters in London.

She reported that stubborn resistance continues in the Indies.

"Our navy is on duty every day," she said. "Our mercantile marine, still one of the largest, has been completely integrated in the navigational effort of the United Nations, fighting off axis submarines and raiders in close

Rubber from Grain Bill Is Vetoed by President

Declares Program Would Impede War Effort, Rather Than Help It; Baruch To Study Plans.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 — Asserting it would block progress of the war effort, President Roosevelt vetoed today legislation to create an independent agency to stimulate production of rubber from grain and simultaneously created a committee to look into the whole rubber problem.

Bernard M. Baruch, who was head of the war industries board in the last war, will be chairman of the committee named to recommend the best program to produce the synthetic rubber necessary for the war effort and for essential civilian use.

Serving with Baruch are Dr. James B. Conant, president of Harvard university, and Dr. Karl T. Compton, president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Would Hamper War

Mr. Roosevelt said the bill he was vetoing—passed by congress with the backing of the farm bloc—would hamper instead of aid the war effort.

The measure, the President said in a message to the senate, would break up an existing logical coordination of centralized control in the war production board and override priorities established by WPB for materials necessary to other branches of products essential in war.

Stating that the board had already located a certain amount of rubber to be made from both agricultural products and petroleum, Mr. Roosevelt said that both types of plants now are being constructed and that others are planned for construction "at the greatest possible speed."

The President said that to take the problem out of the hands of [illegible] board with an [illegible] of military [illegible] would damage a unified and expeditious war production program.

Cites Food Needs

The production of rubber from grain, even under the present program, Mr. Roosevelt said, would require almost 100,000,000 bushels. Despite great grain reserves, he added, we must bear

U. S. FLIERS DOWN 'PHOTO JOE' IN PACIFIC

Japanese Photographic Plane Rare Prize of Pilots.

By The Associated Press

GENERAL MacARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, AUSTRALIA, Aug. 6—American fliers who shot down six Japanese planes in recent battles over the Gona-Buna area of New Guinea told today of a special prize they bagged—a "Photo Joe."

They reported downing five Japanese naval Zero fighters and said the sixth plane—a twin-engined craft—unmistakably was a reconnaissance ship used by the Japs for high altitude photography.

A formation of five United States medium bombers encountered the photography plane before meeting the Zeros.

Lieut. J. S. Kale of Bellingham, Wash., said "Photo Joe" flew out of a cloud toward us as bold as anything. He knew we were in formation, probably under orders, so we wouldn't take after him."

"What he forgot," said Kale,

JUDGE IMPOSES DEATH PENALTY ON DETROITER

First To Be Found Guilty of Treason in America in 148 Years.

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, Aug. 6 — Max Stephan, first person in 148 years to be convicted of treason in the United States, was sentenced in federal court today to be hanged.

U. S. district Judge Arthur J. Tuttle directed that Stephan, German-born American citizen, be hanged on Nov. 13, 1942, within the walls of the federal detention prison at Milan, Mich.

Stephan was convicted in federal court here of aiding the flight of a Nazi flier escaped from a Canadian concentration camp.

"The life of this traitor, Max Stephan, is less valuable than the lives of our loyal sons which are being given in the cause of the United States," said Judge Tuttle in pronouncing sentence.

"We have been too soft, to the extent of being mushy. There are too many in the sob squad and too few in the fighting squad. This is no ordinary war. We talk of soldiers and we think of death not in figures of thousands but in figures of millions. If the lives of many of our boys are to be taken to help such a cause, this court should not hesitate to take the life of one traitor if it, in turn, will help that same just cause."

Answers Own Question

Judge Tuttle said, before he pronounced the sentence that he asked himself, "will the sentence of death be a greater deterrent than any other to fifth columnists who also want to adhere to Germany?"

"The court sees only one answer," the judge said. "It is the affirmative. Disloyal citizens know even better than the court does that a prisoner sentenced to life is eligible to pardon after 15 years and also that after the war such prisoners usually are paroled or their sentences commuted."

Judge Tuttle said it was now impossible to impose a sentence that would "teach Max Stephan a lesson so he won't do it again."

He said, "there was nothing more that Stephan could have done in the way of helping Hans Peter Krug (the escaped pilot) get back to Germany."

The courtroom was packed as the first man convicted of treason since the famous "Whisky Rebellion" was brought before the federal judge for sentence.

Stephan gave no evidence of emotion when he heard his fate pronounced.

When the judge read off the sentence that gives Stephan only a little more than three months to live, a hush descended on the courtroom. There was no demonstration.

Governor Won't Intervene

At Lansing, Gov. Murray D. Van Wagoner of Michigan said that he would make no move to intervene in the death sentence meted out to Stephan.

The 49-year-old Detroit restaurateur who boasted that his love for the fatherland was stronger than that for his adopted country was found guilty July 2 by a federal court jury of aiding a Nazi air force prisoner of war who fled from a Canadian concentration camp.

"Although I have become an American citizen," he once said, "my blood is German. I am not sorry for what I have done and I would do it again."

Stephan was taken into custody April 21 by federal bureau of investigation agents after 21-year-old Oberleutnant Krug passed through Detroit and Ohio in an attempt to reach Mexico and thence Germany after his escape.

He was first charged with unlawfully laboring an alien, a misdemeanor, but at the direction of Attorney General Francis Biddle, he subsequently was indicted for treason which accused him of 13 overt acts which gave "aid and comfort" to an enemy in time of war.

Krug, who was recaptured in San Antonio, Tex., by FBI agents, was the government's most important witness. He told of his escape April 16 from the concentration camp at Bowmanville, Ont., of reaching Windsor and crossing the Detroit river in a stolen rowboat.

TEST ROADS IN BLACKOUT

Ohio and U. S. Work Out System for Guarding Motor Traffic.

By The Associated Press

HEBRON, O., Aug. 6—The United States will not repeat England's experience of thousands of traffic accident casualties during blackouts and air raids, first tests in a starlit 17-mile-long "laboratory" centered on this little central Ohio community indicated today.

When a week's experiments are completed, safety engineers will be able to tell highway departments just what types of markers to use to prevent accidents in the eerie lights shed by 35 candle power headlamps instead of the 58,000 candle power beam of modern head lights.

The U. S. highway administration set up the study in cooperation with the Ohio highway department selected Hebron because it offered a variety of road types and driving conditions. Now come along on the spring test trip—

Prepare Eyes for Trip

With highway officials and newspapermen you report at the village's school building at 10 p. m. Only dim shaded lights illuminate the hall where road wardens wait to guide you. Every other car goes into a room in which one small blue light burns to condition your eyes for blackout driving.

An hour later we grope through an inky-black corridor to a room where a tiny red light burns. If we can read the top three lines of a letter chart we can drive, otherwise we're to be spectators.

Safely past that obstacle, we wait in the blue room until midnight when the village lights are cut off. Then out into total darkness except for the stars. All cars except official ones cleared from the test area.

Hidden observers then line up their cars for the civilian drivers, a dim blue light and two tiny fender running lights, shaded to prevent their being seen from possible low flying planes, illuminate 100 feet of street with a ghostly glow.

The driver of the first car takes his seat, beside him is a guide who directs the 17-mile village and highway route. In the back seat the official recorder looks over his 10-page graph, aided by a tiny red flashlight. Following every road sign and all painted marking lines.

Keeps Eye on Signs

The driver does not know the way, he moves along at about 15 miles an hour. He comments on every sign he sees. The recorder notes every comment on his chart.

Two hours later, we're back at the school building, to write reports with these conclusions:

Blackout drivers can roll along safely at 15 miles an hour if road signs are close to the ground and painted in highly contrasting colors such as black and white, if center lines are white (especially if glass beaded) and broken lines are spaced closely, if traffic is controlled intelligently and, of most importance if the drivers concentrate enough on the guides placed for their assistance.

Conclusions of all drivers in the experiment will be studied by public roads administration experts and the results will be reported to the office of civilian defense with a request for state highway departments to standardize their road marking systems.

Series of Lectures To Precede Study at Harding High.

Introductory lectures to a course in aerial photographic mapping will be given at Harding High school next week under auspices of the sponsors of the course, Ohio State university, the high school and the Chamber of Commerce.

The course will be offered under the university's engineering, science and management war training program and will start about Oct. 1.

The four lectures introducing and outlining the course will be given Monday and Wednesday nights, Aug. 10, 12, 17 and 19 from 6:30 to 9:30. They will be considered a part of the course in advanced surveying.

Anyone interested may attend the lectures.

The course will be offered free, except for purchase of a text book, not book and drafting supplies. University credit will not be given but a certificate will be issued upon satisfactory completion of the work.

Application blanks may be obtained at the Chamber of Commerce office on North State street or by writing Prof. H. E. Nold at Ohio State university.

High school graduation, a working knowledge of trigonometry and one year's experience in surveying or drafting will be required.

The course will be composed of lectures and laboratory practice covering reading of aerial photographs, mosaics, radial line and slotted template plotting, scale check and tilt, stereoscopic principles, principles of floating point, use of stereo-comparagraph, and principles of multiplex projector.

Classes will be conducted two nights a week, three hours each night, for 16 weeks, beginning about Oct. 1.

The demand for men and women trained in making maps has greatly exceeded the supply, according to the sponsors. The course will offer an opportunity for surveyors or draftsmen to train for war service in mapping from air photographs. It also will offer engineers and students the opportunity to [illegible] effort by learning [illegible] of interpreting [illegible] and their [illegible] as a source of [illegible].

KIT BAGS SENT BY RED CROSS

New Item for Soldiers Included in Latest Marion County Shipment.

A new item, kit bags for soldiers, was in the war relief shipment made yesterday by the Marion county Red Cross chapter.

The kit bags, 100 of the 500 which has been given the chapter, were sent to the American Red Cross warehouse in St. Louis, Mo., and the other large carton was sent to the American Red Cross depot in St. Louis.

The chapter, at a cost of $1 each, will supply the contents for 25 of the bags.

Many communities organizations and individuals have been contributing money for the kit bag supplies. Marion city and county residents who would like to supply the contents for one or more bags may leave their contributions at the chapter office in the Y.M.C.A. building on South State street.

Making of the bags was taken over by the American Red Cross when the need of hundreds of thousands of the items was indicated by the war department.

Each Soldier Supplied

Each soldier who leaves the country is given one of the bags before he is sent out of camp. Several hundred thousand bags have been made already by hundreds of chapters over the nation.

Making of the kit bags has been turned over to the Scioto Ordnance Plant women who meet every Tuesday at the production center at 504 South State street. From 10 in the morning until about 4 in the afternoon they cut and sew the bags and fill them with supplies purchased by the chapter. Their chairman is Mrs. H. N. Putnam.

The khaki material, furnished by the war department, is cut in 12 by 31½ inches. When filled and folded and held by a drawstring, the entire kit is 11 by 14 inches and weighs one and a half pounds, according to Red Cross regulations.

List of Contents

The bags are fitted with pockets for the various contents and each has a flannel-lined "housewife" which contains sewing and darning needles, black, white and khaki thread, three sizes of buttons, and safety pins.

Contents of the kit-proper are soap and a soap box, razor blades, shoe polish and shining cloth, shoe laces, comb, shaving accessories, pencil, styptic pencil and envelopes and writing material.

In the carton sent yesterday to the depot were 60 girls' skirts; 30 women's skirts; 15 girls' dresses; 15 men's sweaters; 20 children's sweatres; 10 children's knitted suits; 40 boys' suits; 50 infants' comforts.

Charles Erow of the city fire department tied the carton for the packing committee. Mrs. A. Merle Hamilton, chairman, Mrs. E. G. Halby, Mrs. George Alber, Mrs. Howard Swink, Mrs. J. H. Harmon, Mrs. Rex Kilbourn, Mrs. John A. McNamara, Mrs. Robert Y. Smith, Mrs. Philip Guthery and Mrs. George Planck. The garments were inspected Tuesday by Mrs. John M. Gardner.

The knitted garments in the carton were made by individuals and the sewed garments were cut and made by women of churches, lodges, clubs and private groups.

The present quota is nearly filled, Mrs. John T. McNamara, sewing chairman, said yesterday. Within a short time the chapter will receive materials for a quota of approximately 3,500 garments.

Transportation Cancels Ohio Florida Picnic

DELAWARE, O., Aug. 6—Curtailed transportation facilities have forced the Ohio-Florida association, an organization of 300 Ohioans who spend part of each year in Florida, to cancel plans for its annual picnic scheduled for Aug. 12 at Westerville, officers announced yesterday. Mrs. Gladys DeVore of Delaware is secretary-treasurer and Mrs. Margaret Pary Grove of Worthington is president.

FOR JUDGE of the Court of Appeals

X Ralph Sugrue

"Only 40 of the cases in which he has presided have been carried to the higher courts. Of these, one judgment in an equity case was modified by the Court of Appeals; in another . . . a new trial was ordered by the Court of Appeals for the sole reason that the verdict of the jury was against the weight of the evidence. A third was reversed by the Supreme Court, but in that instance two of the six judges participating dissented and agreed with the holding of Judge Sugrue. Three are still pending.

"The remaining 34 cases were either affirmed, settled, or dismissed.

"That's a nine-year record as a trial judge of almost 100 per cent."

(From an editorial, July 2, 1912, in the Tiffin Advertiser-Tribune. Independent newspaper with a circulation of 8,500.)

WYANDOT CO. MAN KILLED BY TRAIN

Jacob Reis, 87, Found Along C. & O. Right-of-Way.

Special to The Star

UPPER SANDUSKY, Aug. 6—Jacob Reis, 87, was killed instantly Wednesday when he was struck by northbound C. & O. local freight train. He was a resident of the county home.

The body was found by Pat Hopkins, also a resident of the home, at 10:15 a. m. Another resident, Charles Day, told Sheriff Fred Jonas he had seen Reis walking toward the track about 10 a. m.

Sheriff Jonas said Reis' head was crushed but there were no other marks on the body. Jonas said he believed Reis was napping along the right of way when the train passed. He may have tried to get up when awakened by the rumble of the wheels and fell into the corner of a car.

The train crew did not see the accident. The body was removed to the J. T Lucas Co. funeral home.

Surviving are a sister, Mrs George Baker of Toledo, and two nephews, Roy Watson of Toledo, and L. M Dugman of Vineland.

SENDS WARNING ABOUT PRIMARY VOTING RULE

Must Stick To Your Party, State Official Says.

In a letter received by the Marion county board of elections yesterday, Secretary of State Jean E. Sweeney cautioned precinct officials to guard carefully against the possibility of voters switching party affiliation at the primaries.

He pointed out that the elector who voted for the majority of the candidates of one party at the last general election is automatically a member of that party in the eyes of the law.

In the event any voter is challenged on party grounds in the primary, the law specifically provides that he must take an oath or affirmation and subscribe to the same.

TWO HURDLES BLOCK PAY TO DEPENDENTS

Congressmen Seek To Advance Army Aid.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 — A number of congressmen seeking to authorize immediate payment of allowances to dependents of fighting men face two difficult hurdles, the army and legislative etiquette.

Army people want the payments deferred until November. They contend they need the time to set up distributing machinery.

The question of etiquette stems from an agreement that no controversial legislation would be considered during the current informal recess. Most of the house members and some senators are home for autumn campaigns.

Congress has authorized allowances retroactive to June but not payable until November 1.

"This," Representative Rankin (D-Miss.) suggested, "doesn't make sense. Many dependents are in dire need of help and it wouldn't cost the government a cent to make the payments now."

Rankin tried to set what one member said was a precedent when he demanded immediate consideration of his bill to lift the restriction despite the agreement on noncontroversial matters. He was blocked at least temporarily by acting Majority Leader Cochran (D-Mo.). During the recess bills can be brought up only by unanimous consent. Cochran objected to Rankin's bill.

The measure went to the house military affairs committee. Rankin intended to poll the members informally and declared he would demand action again if a majority favored it.

Meanwhile, there was scant prospect that the senate would act immediately on a similar proposal by Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.). His bill is before the temporarily adjourned senate military affairs committee.

Vandenberg expressed hope that action would come soon.

Opponents of the bills registered consternation at suggestions by some legislators that political motives were involved. Senator Willis (R-Ind.), favoring lifting the limitation, was one who raised the political issue.

He observed in a statement signed also by Representative Landis (R-Ind.) that November 1 was "only two days before the election."

"It is hoped," the statement added, "that discussion of the Vandenberg bill by the senate military affairs committee will reveal that the war department was not thinking about the elections of November when it insisted to congress that Nov. 1 was the earliest possible date on which it could make payments which have been due since June."

SECOND FRONT TALK KEEPS EUROPE TENSE

Dutch Premier Tells People To Await Call.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Aug. 6—European capitals exhibited growing tension today as official quarters combined with the press and radio to keep the second front issue a dominant theme.

Broadcasting from London, Premier Pieter S. Gerbrandy of the Dutch government in exile told his countrymen in the German-occupied Netherlands last night that the tide of war is turning and urged them to "await with wise patience the moment when the call comes from here not only to take a passive but also an active part" in the opening of a new front.

At the same time the Moscow radio declared that "every day brings nearer the time when the agreement signed between Britain and the U.S.S.R. on the urgency of establishing a second front in Europe will be put into effect."

Anxiety over the situation the Russian broadcast said is growing the Nazis gamble to further gains and double efforts in South Russia."

German preoccupation with the second front issue was reflected in a fresh flood of propaganda from Nazi sources emphasizing the strength of the defenses being completed in western Europe.

Alleged details of these defenses also were reported in the Swiss press in a Berlin dispatch written for the Zurich Die Tat by one of a party of neutral journalists permitted to tour the coastal area under Nazi guidance.

The dispatch told of "mighty fortifications of concrete and iron" on the Lofoten islands of northern Norway and were extending mining operations off the Norwegian coast.

Extending deep inland.

Stockholm dispatches to Switzerland said the Germans likewise were building extensive defenses

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them! Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Sidewalk Legislation Needed

AN ORDINANCE requiring that all sidewalk construction conform to definite specifications should have been in effect in Marion long before this. Now we hear that a proposal of that nature is likely to come before city council and we hope it will result in adoption of an ordinance without further delay.

According to information coming from Safety-Service Director Caldwell, sidewalk specification have been on file in the city engineer's office over a period of years and were recently revised. This means little or nothing, however, without legislation requiring use of the official specifications and also issuance of permits before construction work can be done. Proof of this is found in the fact that sidewalks have been laid in any manner and fashion that the builders wished to devise and without any attempt to follow the model plans prepared by the city. This hit and miss method will continue unless regulations are officially adopted by council and then strictly enforced.

There is no likelihood of general replacement of old sidewalks throughout the city, but many of those now in use are getting so near the worn-out stage that the time is not far off when they will be no longer fit nor safe. This condition exists especially in the downtown business district, where pedestrian traffic is most extensive and the need for safety and convenience is proportionately urgent. In fact, several sidewalk replacements have been made in this area in recent months and it is certain that with business developments and changes coming rapidly numerous similar jobs will be scheduled in the near future. Obviously it is desirable that some plan be adopted to assure durable construction and uniformity of design and dimensions.

Naturally, sidewalk construction has changed greatly since street improvement work started in Marion long ago. First came plank sidewalks and these gradually were replaced by sandstone, a material which was available at comparatively low cost and which has stood up well under many years of usage. But in the intervening years steady advancement has been made in cement construction, until now that material is almost universally used. So it is logical to believe that as time goes on, cement will take the place of all the old stone walks, just as stone supplanted the planks of Marion's village era.

As this change takes place, gradual and slow though it may be, let's have a guarantee that it will be an improvement of real and lasting value to the city.

Strict regulations apply to virtually all work done on sewers, pavings, driveway entrances and other street improvements or repairs, and there is absolutely no reason why sidewalks should not be subject to the same requirements.

Under or Over

SUBMARINE INVENTOR SIMON LAKE'S renewed insistence that the best way to beat undersea raiders is undersea cargo vessels is chiefly interesting for what it doesn't insist on—that the best way to beat them is by trying to build surface ships faster than submarines can sink them.

That continues, nevertheless, to be official procedure. Admittedly, the logic of submarine cargo vessels is even harder to grasp than the logic of aerial freight trains. Both stem from desperation induced by Germany's success with submarine raiding in World wars I and II. Both are now at least 25 years old, though the aerial freight train only recently has been made feasible while the submarine freighter actually was used by Germany to a small extent in the other war.

Perhaps it will take a third war to convince the perennial victims of Germany's explosive militarism that the submarine still is the only weapon for which no satisfactory defense has been devised.

Symbolic Recognition

THE zestful kidders who find it hard to be serious about the WAAC's and the WAVES may be heading for a come-uppance. Even the kidders, some of whom would be described better as misogynists, must admit in their honest intervals that the new organizations for women in the army and navy are symbolic recognition of women's growing importance in organized activity everywhere.

Dr. Mildred Helen McAfee accepted administrative direction of the feminine naval reserve as a "representative of the women of America who welcome each new opportunity to render service to the nation." That service is in virtually every field of organized activity and growing constantly. The United States has tapped a source of labor and skill greater than that possessed by any other country.

The ability and political and economic dignity of its women constitute a national asset of great importance. Though the WAAC's and the WAVES will get the publicity, the work that women are doing began long before anyone dreamed of putting them into uniform. It began, perhaps, when the first American woman dreamed that there might be a more interesting destiny in store than spending all the rest of her life doing housework.

News Behind the News

Paul Mallon Answers a Letter About Columnists "Being Told What To Write."

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6—Dear Mr. Mallon:

My views range far in contact with many columnists, reporters and other people, including the editor operating and [illegible].

It has been my ambition to get these people and straight as to the confidence and truthfulness being expressed by you and your fellow columnists.

"When I read these various columns, I have confidence in you and your fellow columnists' opinions. Upon being asked to express my feelings on certain subjects, I often times keep some of your ideas in the back of my head.

"However, many of my fellow associates make harsh statements which, at this time show much dissatisfaction with the way many in Washington are doing things.

"They deem the columnists as being told what to write, and say you just write because you are paid to. Most of them have no respect for the American press at this time, and accuse the board of censors of misinforming the people.

"Certainly something could be done in defense of our reliable columnists and the American press. You alone could clear this situation up in time by writing an article in defense."

(Signed) Charles F. Litz
"Wilmington, Delaware."

Dear Mr. Litz:

The syndicated columnists are paid a little by each paper, not a lot by one newspaper or even a group. I think the smallest number of client newspapers publishing any of the national columnists is about 60. About 250 are publishing my column and these represent every shade of international, economic and political opinion.

I, too, have run into the same criticism which you have encountered.

A letter from a Colorado reader the other day cuffed me around for writing the editorial viewpoint of his home town paper there which publishes my column. I have never had the pleasure of seeing the paper.

Another correspondent accused me of trying to get all the Democrats kicked out of congress, because I wrote the facts about congress delaying the payment of dependent women and children of our fighting men for five months until the day before the coming congressional election.

But that same day, I received a request from a Democratic congressional candidate in West Virginia, asking permission to reprint the very same article for his Democratic purposes.

I find it generally evens up that way. The great majority of people can easily see from what a columnist writes what he is trying to do. A man cannot himself completely through his writings day by day by any other means.

I have had some suspicions in times past that some new writers were trying to present a subsidized viewpoint, or were "being told what to write," as you put it, either by the government or by some invisible parties, but they did not last very long.

It takes an unusual personality to write convincingly and interestingly about something which he himself does not believe. If a writer, himself, does not believe what he is writing, he will never make many others believe it, and his writings are therefore unimportant.

You can see from the manner in which the columnists work and are paid that they could not attempt to present the editorial judgment of their papers. It is physically impossible to obtain or read that many papers. I have never seen most of my papers.

The government cannot be said to control more than a handful, if any, newspapers. Therefore, it cannot pay columnists in anything except personal favors, and few successful journalists here want favors that bad. They generally want to sell more newspapers and make more money.

The idea that the government tells us what to write and pays for it therefore cannot be generally true. No columnist that I know of submits his articles to the censors. We know what are military secrets and avoid their use.

The fact that this situation exists in the newspaper business is a great tribute to the American press, the greatest perhaps. In itself, it offers incontrovertible proof of the fairness and impartiality of the press as a whole.

Here you have hundreds of papers all through the country, each with its own sharp individual editorial viewpoint, expressed by its publisher or his local editorial writers, willing to open its columns daily to columnists far away in Washington whom they do not know, and who frequently express judgments conflicting with their own.

It is a fine example of democracy in action and the democracy of the press, that newspapers thus present all viewpoints to their readers, while maintaining their own in their editorials.

The growth of the syndicated column, thus shows conclusively that the American press is not only constitutionally free, but practices freedom.

Yours sincerely,
Paul Mallon.

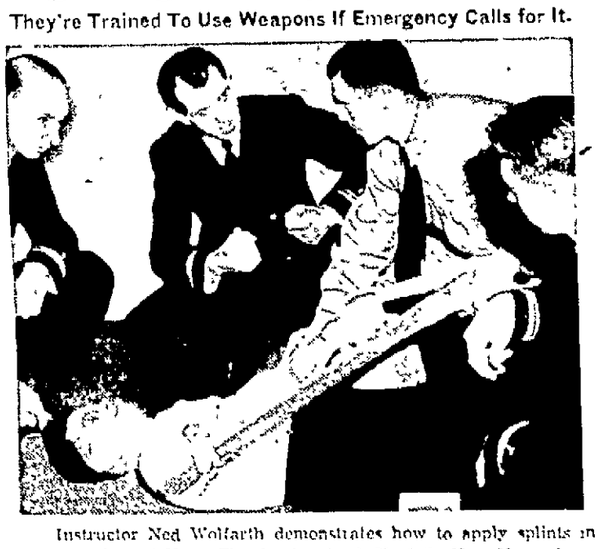
Fighting Navy Chaplains

They're Trained To Use Weapons If Emergency Calls for It.



Instructor Ned Wolfarth demonstrates how to apply splints in first aid class at Navy Chaplain's school, Norfolk, Va. Navy chaplains also are given basic training in the use of weapons.

By HERMAN ALLEN
Wide World Features Writer

NORFOLK, Va., Aug. 5—"Praise the Lord and pass the ammunition! I got one of the so-and-sos."

That line shouted by a fighting navy chaplain at Pearl Harbor, should go down in American history with Lawrence's "Don't give up the ship" and John Paul Jones' "I've not yet begun to fight."

Navy chaplains are not meek psalm-singers, but real men—men whom sailors respect. They have their battle station aboard ship with all the rest. Usually it is with the injured but they are given basic training in the use of weapons and stand to a machine gun in a pinch.

It is not as fighting men, however that navy chaplains have really won the esteem and confidence of the men of Uncle Sam's fleet. It is because they understand the problems of homesick boys and of men who walk daily under the cloud of danger.

Here, under some trees on the grounds of the vast Norfolk Naval Operating Base, is a smallish frame building with a church-like air—the Chaplains' school.

Speaker from North

A guest speaker was talking to the class as I arrived to visit. Chaplain C. A. Neyman, head of the school, a Baptist minister who has served the navy 24 years. The speaker was a prominent psychologist and theologist from "up north."

"I never can get away from the theology that I was taught," he was saying—and translate a found flesh and blood experiences."

A serious, spectacled man in his 30's raised his hand.

"Do you think we should use the Scriptures?" he asked.

"Yes, certainly," the speaker replied, "but your use of the Scriptures and of prayer should be determined by what the man needs."

Stranger though he was, this lecturer had hit on the principle to which the navy educates its budding chaplains—to make religion fit the navy and its men.

"Even a minister of years' experience has to undergo a revamping of thinking before he can be a successful navy chaplain," Chaplain Neyman told me. "In civilian life he would be dealing with both men and women of varying levels of society. In the navy he is dealing with only one kind of person—fighting men, men whose lives may be hard, and perilous and who have learned to evaluate things quickly and realistically.

Must Aim at Bull's Eye

"They look at religion that way. Religion has to hit them and their life. Navy chaplains can't use the 'shotgun' type of sermon, the kind that touches every member of a civilian congregation somehow or other. Navy sermons have to be 'rifle' sermons. They have to aim at the bull's-eye.

The navy sets a high standard for the men it assigns to bring religious counsel to that boy of yours aboard a fighting ship. A man who must "pass a call" to be a navy chaplain won't make it unless he is an ordained minister with an A.B. or B.S. college degree plus seminary training and two year's experience. On top of this, he must be recommended by officials of his church as a man of the right temperament and abilities.

Sea duty is divided between Roman Catholic and Protestant chaplains, who visit each other's ships whenever possible so that men of both faiths have an opportunity to attend their own services. There are relatively few Jewish men in the navy—about the same proportion as in the population at large—so there are no Jewish chaplains afloat. There are several, however, at land bases.

Careful selection of candidates and the drafting of a program intelligently aimed at meeting navy men's needs have raised the chaplain enormously in the eyes of officers and men. Chaplain Neyman said:

"When I went into the service," he recalled, "a chaplain reporting for duty was met with an attitude of 'well, here you are, what are we going to do with you?' Now it's 'Thank heaven, you're here at last!'"

Today and Tomorrow

Need Seen for Public Officials and War Leaders with Vision and Audacity.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

THERE are now in circulation a number of catch phrases which men who are up to their job would never think of using until they had first sweated blood to avoid them. One of them is the "either-this-or-that" formula. Another is the formula which says: "You can't fight today's war with tomorrow's weapons." We shall not go far wrong if we adopt a strong prejudice and insist that the resort to either of these formulae is a good reason for asking whether the man who uses them is not walking in his sleep.

For, except in special cases, he is almost certainly the 1942 model of the man who in 1940 wanted to "superimpose" the armament program on normal business, and in 1941 did not think civilian industry could be converted to war.

The vice of the either-this-or-that formula — either bomber-or-cargo planes, either-merchant ships-or-escorts — is that it takes for granted a fundamental fact which is not true. It assumes that we are just about at the limit of our industrial mobilization: that we are near the peak of efficiency in the plants, that the flow of materials is effectively organized, that rigorous economy is being practiced, and that the civilian population has made all the sacrifices that can be asked of it. It assumes, in other words, so successful and so complete a mobilization of the American economy that nothing more can be squeezed out of it. Only when that stage has been reached, do we have to admit without searching inquiry that a new proposal is a case of either-this-or-that.

But in our present stage of partial mobilization we do not even really know how much fat and how much slack there is to draw upon. Therefore, before we can let any one say that something can't be done because there isn't enough of something or other, we shall not be unreasonable if we insist that he step aside and let some one else try who has a tougher mind and a stouter heart. For under present circumstances the either-this-or-that formula is a self-justifying phrase for soft leadership, tepid administration, taking it easy and not sticking one's neck out.

Only the Beginning

The first-rate men in Washington never use this catch phrase because they know only too well that we are only at the beginning of a thorough-going mobilization; that we have barely begun to scrape and drive and squeeze anybody or anything as our enemies scrape and drive and squeeze themselves. No doubt we are already getting immense results out of our immense resources. But we are not getting anything like what we could get or what we shall have to get before the end of this struggle is even in sight.

The armed services, the war production board and the civilians are still in the mental and moral atmosphere of abundance. We are only at the begining of a full-scale effort to simplify the military requirements. We have scarcely begun, as the Higgins testimony about steel discloses, to take control of the supply of materials. As civilians we are still being coddled to a degree which makes it positively embarrassing to look our fighting men in the face. We are told we should conserve rubber, tin, fats.

High Point in His New Show Is Wa
He Recaptures Youth; He Was Rookie in World War I.

By DAMON RUNYON

RECAPTURE of youth is a privilege ac- accorded a man in this world.

When the young years depart they are gone forever, leaving behind them c memory. I have known but few men who been permitted to go back and relive golden days of youth after passing the age mark.

One of these is Irving Berlin. I think big feature of his show, This is the A- though it may have escaped the notice others, is that it is Berlin young again. Berlin back in the same environment, and mosphere of 25 years ago when he was youthful soldier putting "Yip, Yip, Yaphan for the army.

As it was said of Kipling, it could be s of Berlin that the fairy sprites were drunk his christening. They showered him with g of genius that made him one of the great p ular song writers of the world for upwards 30 years—that brought him fame and fort But I think their greatest gift was the rea to his youth that he is now enjoying.

IN the first World war, Berlin, then a s geant, was in camp Upton at Yaphank Long Island, with the Seventy-seventh divis when he organized and produced "Yip, Yaphank," probably the first and certainly greatest show of the kind ever conceived. cast was made up entirely of enlisted men.

The army looked at the project askance the beginning but was presently all coope tion. Tough, hard-bitten Gen. J. Franklin one of our old time military heroes, comman of Upton, addressed a critical Broadway a ence from the stage of the Century theate the close of the show.

"Yip, Yip, Yaphank" was produced for benefit of a community house at Upton w the camp could act as host to the families friends of the soldiers. There were 350 enli men in the cast. A slight young fellow uniform that fitted his skinny frame none well sang in a small voice a song that wa become a national soldier and civilian cla —"Oh, How I Hate to Get Up in the Morni The young fellow was Berlin, even the Broadway sidol.

THE years rolled back at the Broad theater the other night and there was Be again, still slight of structure, this time uniform that seemed to fit fairly well but the same small voice, singing the same s Around him were six members of the orig Yaphankers, Danny Healy, Peter O'Neill, J. Burns, John Murphy, Jack Riano and Ha Kennedy. If the truth must be told, all lo 25 years older, except Danny Healy, the pe nial juvenile.

Berlin lived at Upton while writing this show, which also has 350 enlisted men in cast and is for the Army Emergency R fund. It will probably gross a couple of mil of dollars. Thus, you see, he had the opport of returning to the actual scene of his you days to make the transition back to youth more complete.

He thinks "This Is the Army" is a gre show than "Yip, Yip, Yaphank." I think "This Is the Army" is undoubtedly a show, but a couple of the best numbers from "Yip, Yip, Yaphank," besides the about the bugler. However, making com sons now would just be quibbling, though I say the finale of the first show, which saw entire cast in full heavy marching tack p ing up the aisles through the audience ob sibly on their way to the transport was of the most thrilling scenes ever presente a theater.

I WAS glad to see one of my favorites o night clubs, an authentic comedian, Oshins, the hit of the show. He used to with an even funnier man named Lessey, is now in a night club in Hollywood. split up when Oshins went in the arm thought another stage favorite of mine, Sergt. Ezra Stone, did a swell job of the d tion. But Berlin's recapture of his youth the high spot for me.

COLUMBUS OFFICIALS MAP ANTI-VICE WAR

Mayor Says They Will "Handle the Situation."

Several specific cases of violation of permits cited by Lt. [illegible] M. Baldinger, former Marion man who is commandant of Lockbourne air base, will be laid before Columbus' new emergency civil authorities committee at a meeting Friday, according to a news report today.

Earlier closing hours and stricter regulations for dancing in beer and liquor places in Columbus and Franklin county, proposed by Colonel Baldinger when he talked Tuesday to more than 600 permit holders, was seen as a possibility at a meeting of the committee yesterday.

Frank Kirwin, president of the Franklin County Tavern Keepers' association and chairman of the war emergency committee, said it was decided the committee's duty will be to make recommendations concerning regulation of beer and liquor places and dance halls in the city and county, to investigate any violations of permit holders and to prosecute such violations before the state board of liquor control for suspension or revocation of licenses.

Mayor Floyd Green called the committee meeting yesterday and told the members:

"We are big enough to handle our own situation. It should not be necessary for the federal government to come in here and take over law enforcement."

Army officials have threatened Columbus that unless vice conditions are cleaned up the army will do the job.

Three women were sentenced yesterday, one to a year in the workhouse on a charge of engaging in prostitution, second degree, and two to 90 days each in the workhouse on charges of appearing in public places with a contagious disease.

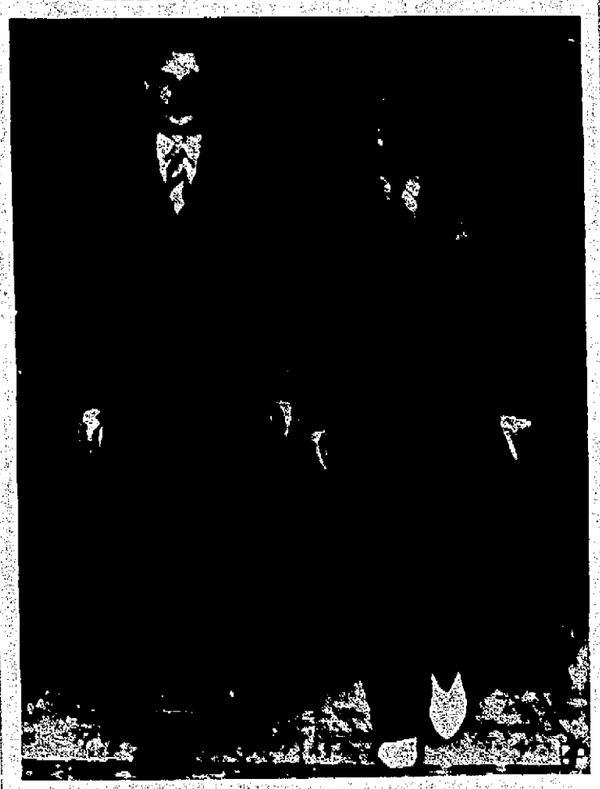
PELLEY ESCORTED TO TRIAL



William Dudley Pelley (right), goateed former leader of the Silver Shirts, is escorted from jail to federal court at Indianapolis where he testified in his trial on charges of sedition. Deputy U. S. Marshal R. G. Newbold is at left.

PELLEY CONVICTED, TO ASK NEW TRIAL

Former Silver Shirts' Leader Guilty on 11 Counts.

By The Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 6—William Dudley Pelley, convicted on 11 counts of criminal sedition and conspiracy and facing a possible maximum sentence of 220 years in prison, based his hopes for freedom today on a new trial.

A motion for a new trial will be filed within three days, defense attorney Floyd Christian said, and if it is denied the case will be appealed to the U. S. circuit court of appeals in Chicago.

The spruce little man who once headed the Silver Shirts of America was convicted last night by a federal court jury which also convicted two business associates, Lawrence A. Brown and Miss Agnes Marian Henderson. Brown and Miss Henderson were found guilty of one count of conspiracy to commit sedition.

The three were officers of the Fellowship Press, a publishing house at Noblesville, Ind., where Penney's magazine, the Galilean, was printed once a week. The government charged statements in the Galilean were made "wilfully to cause or attempt to cause insubordination, disloyalty, mutiny and refusal of duty (in U. S. military forces), and also to obstruct recruiting."

Pelley did not appear ruffled when the jury returned its verdict after three hours and 15 minutes of deliberation, although he faces possible sentences of 20 years, plus $10,000 fines, on each of the 11 counts.

Pelley was returned to the county jail after the verdict was read, being unable to post enough bond to cover a second sedition indictment in Washington. Brown and Miss Henderson were released under bond until next Wednesday, when Judge Robert E. Baltzell said he would pronounce sentence.

Ferguson Asks Only Indorsement of People

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 6—Other Democratic gubernatorial aspirants may have the indorsement of political leaders, says Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson, but "I have the people."

This was his comment yesterday after Charles Sawyer of Cincinnati, Democratic national committeeman, expressed personal preference for former Congressman John McSweeney of Wooster.

Former Gov. Davey announced several weeks ago that he would back former State Treasurer Clarence Knisley of Bainbridge, Cuyahoga County Chairman Ray T. Miller recently indorsed Walter Heer of Columbus.

"McSweeney has Sawyer, Knisely has Davey, Heer has Miller and I have the people," Ferguson declared. "The people will rule and I will be nominated Aug. 11 and elected governor."

companionship with your own brave seafaring men."

Queen Wilhelmina in a press conference asserted her people "have been overwhelmed by force but they never have submitted and they never will."

The visiting monarch answered numerous questions at a press conference — the first held by a queen in her own right in the United States—before addressing the joint session of congress and making a radio broadcast with President Roosevelt.

Answering another question about health conditions in Holland, the queen said "health has deteriorated to a very alarming degree" due to a serious lack of food because of German demands.

She told another reporter that she was impressed "particularly" by the apparent "singleness of purpose" of Americans regarding the war.

U. S. Sub Chaser Given Dutch Queen

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6—President Roosevelt turned a swift new submarine chaser over to Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands today with a prediction that once more the Dutch people would "win and maintain" their independence.

In a ceremony at the Washington navy yard, the Stars and Stripes were hauled from the mast of the little craft and the colors of the Netherlands government were hoisted.

Bunting was removed from the name plates on the PC-468 and her name—the Queen Wilhelmina—was revealed. The monarch of the Netherlands commissioned the vessel in a brief address, declaring it would operate "in close collaboration with the United States navy against our common enemies."

The ceremony was broadcast as the 173-foot steel sub chaser lay tied to a pier at the navy yard.

The American Chief Executive transferred the ship to the Netherlands queen, under provisions of the lend-lease act.

GALION GOLF RESULTS

GALION, Aug. 6—In the first round of the handicap golf tournament of the Galion Country club, R. M. Malone defeated W. Shafer two to one while M. McElroy topped J. H. Stuart two to one. It is expected that the tournament will continue until Aug. 20. Dale Quay and Pete Evans are handicapped at par. The club championship match will be held on or about August 25.

AGENCY LISTS HORSES

By The United Press

PORTLAND, Ore.—The "old grey mare" isn't what she used to be—but in these times one can't be too particular. The Portland bureau of the Railway Express agency recently started a "just-in-case" city-wide canvass for all available horses and wagons in the Rose city.

GALION—Filling the vacancy caused by the recent resignation of Eugene Ashmead as vice president of the Galion Camera club, Robert Wiseman has been appointed to the position. James Robinson has been appointed as treasurer to replace Paul Reed.

CITATION WON BY MARION MAN

Lieut. Charles Caprino Named Most Outstanding Officer in His Regiment.

Second Lieut. Charles T. Caprino of 195 Sharp street has won the distinction of being selected as "the most outstanding officer" in his regiment at Fort Jackson, S. C. by Major General R. E. Woodruff, commanding general of the 77th Division, according to a news report today from the public relations office at the fort.

Lieut. Caprino is Second battalion adjutant of the 306th Infantry at Fort Jackson.

The citation was forwarded to him by Col James N. Peale, regimental commander, who recently commended the 26-year-old officer for his outstanding performance of duty in organizing class instruction for the men.

Text of Citation

General Woodruff's commendation read as follows:

"I wish to extend to you my hearty congratulation for the outstanding work which you have performed in your organization since its activation. To have been selected as the most outstanding officer in your organization, which in turn has been so favorably commented upon in the past by senior commanders of both the American and British army, indicates an extremely high degree of efficiency on your part."

In addition to acting as battalion adjutant, Lieutenant Caprino has been serving as battalion intelligence officer and training officer. He also has conducted regular classes in tactics for the regimental intelligence platoon.

Lieut. Caprino joined Marion's Co. D, 166th Infantry, Ohio National Guard, in 1938 and by the time the 166th left for Camp Shelby, Miss., in October of 1940 he was a technical sergeant. Serving as battalion sergeant major, he became first sergeant on Jan. 29, 1941. During this period he attended the Camp Shelby Intelligence School.

Training Course

In October of 1941 he entered the Army Infantry school at Fort Benning, Ga., and was graduated on Jan. 23, 1942. After receiving his commission he was assigned to Camp Croft, S. C., until March 6, 1942 when he was transferred to the Battalion Headquarters, 306th Infantry, as battalion adjutant.

The account of his citation concluded with the following statement:

"A keen student, as well as instructor, of military tactics, the regiment's 'outstanding officer' supplements his knowledge of military theory with actual performance on the firing range.

"Lieutenant Caprino is rated officially as a sharpshooter with the Garand rifle, first class gunner with the heavy machine gun (.30 cal.), and marksman with the pistol, light machine gun, .50 cal. machine gun, Browning automatic rifle and .37 m.m. anti-tank gun."

Lieutenant Caprino served as supervisor of the city and county WPA recreation program in Marion from 1937 until shortly before he was called to service in 1940.

MRS. MURDOCK TAKES A CASE

by George Harmon Coxe

CHAPTER FORTY-THREE
Quick Turn

"HARDACKER must have known there were three people to call on Perry Clarke," Joyce said. "He knew one of them had the envelope but he could not be sure which of them took it. How could he be sure? He came to Delia but she didn't admit she had it. He threatened her out that was all he could do at the time. He must also have gone to the other two with the same idea, deciding to follow up if all denied having it. The actual killer did not have it, but he must have known how serious things were for him. He must have stalled like Delia did. I think he may have promised to furnish it—which is why Delia wasn't called yesterday noon as Hardacker promised."

She took a breath, trying to see if she was convincing anyone. "The guilty one must have made a date with Hardacker last night. When he got there he knew he'd have to kill him. He not only didn't have the envelope but he also must have realized that with Hardacker alive he could never be safe. He found out about Delia—I can't be sure whether he or Hardacker called her, or whether Hardacker was forced to make the call—but after that he shot him."

"Where was he when Raeburn came up then?" Fenner asked.

"I can only guess," Joyce said. "I only know what I'd do. He knows Delia is coming. Unless he intends to kill her too he can't be seen; he doesn't want Delia to know Hardacker is dead, either—and most of all he cannot be sure that she will obey orders and come alone. He dragged the body out of the way, but he wouldn't wait in the office, since he couldn't be sure she'd be alone... I think he went out in the hall and hid. Perhaps on the stairs above.

"Then" if Delia was alone, it would be easy to follow her in. But it was Raeburn who came first. When that happened the killer knew his plan was ruined and he must get out. He did—before we drove up. He waited down the street. Delia went in—and we all know what happened. Raeburn came out and down the street and that's how he happened to lose the envelope. The killer was hiding in a doorway or some place where he could step out and hit Raeburn over the head."

Fenner grunted and looked annoyed.

"That figuring is okay, but it's all guesswork. If Raeburn didn't kill Hardacker I'd believe it. But you haven't proved he didn't. You said you could."

"Well, how would he have killed him, do you think?"

"He went in there with a gun and stuck Hardacker up."

"Yes," Joyce said. "He'd have to have a gun, wouldn't he?"

"Certainly. He held it on Hardacker. Even then, when Hardacker saw it coming, he tried to pull his own. He might have made it but for that lining in his coat."

"That's what I thought," Joyce said. "That's why I know Raeburn didn't kill him."

"Yeah, but—"

"Where did he get the gun?"

"He brought it with him," Fenner said impatiently.

"No," Joyce hesitated. Her voice got quick and excited. "He left police headquarters at nine forty. He took a cab on the corner and was let out a block from the office at five of ten. Lieutenant Bacon told us that. We drove up at five after ten.

"Raeburn was upstairs before that and it must have taken him four or five minutes to walk from where he was let out up to the office. He certainly didn't leave the police station with a gun. They wouldn't allow that, would they? And he didn't stop enroute to Morton Street. Where did he get the gun? There were no stores nearby where he could get one, nothing was open. And yet the killer must have had a gun because—"

"Okay," Fenner said. He moved away from the door and leaned against the wall. He rubbed his nose and looked at Murdock. He waited a little longer before he spoke.

"The killer had to have a gun, otherwise Hardacker's rod wouldn't have been in his holster. Raeburn didn't have a gun—couldn't get one, that is, therefore Raeburn is not the killer." He shook his head. "And they say women aren't logical."

Something warm and vitalizing swept through Joyce on the heels of relief. She even smiled a little at Fenner.

"It's about personal things like love they say women aren't logical," she said. "And so many things are personal to a woman that we have that reputation."

She felt Kent's hand on her arm. She glanced up. His dark eyes were worried but he smiled and took her back to her chair. Fenner was still watching her.

"That changes things, huh?" He tipped his head, looking first at Jonn Nason, then at Dean Thorndike and finally at Ward Allen. "If Raeburn didn't, who did?" His eyes came back to Joyce. "Any ideas on that?"

"One," she said. "I'm not sure but—" She paused, trying to think, to know just what to do. She looked at Delia sitting there beside Dean Thorndike, seeing the strained whiteness in the girl's face, the misery in her eyes. She brought her glance back to her lap, summoning her resolve that she might ignore the sickness in her heart and tell them what she thought. She was groping for a beginning when a voice cut across the room.

"I guess the odds have caught up with me," it said. "It'll be easier all around if I admit it now."

"Ward!" Delia said. Just that one tortured word.

Ward Allen had moved nearer the setter and stood quite close to her. He did not look at her. He held his chin up and waited, meeting every stare defiantly.

"You recognized my voice," he said to Joyce. "The night you found me in Delia's apartment."

"No," Joyce said huskily. "I saw you from the window when you started down the street."

"So," Fenner said. "You're the guy, huh?"

"Hardacker came to me as he came to Delia," Ward was still talking to Joyce. "And I found some passkeys in a pawnshop and went up, thinking that the envelope must be there. . . . Your theory was quite good, Joyce; all except one point. There were but two callers that night at Perry Clarke's—Delia and myself."

"How about the blood on the front of his pants?" Murdock asked. "Clarke got up and went to the door."

Allen looked at him, hesitating. "I don't know how you knew but—yes, he did. I'd thought he was dead. I thought he'd lied to me about the envelope and the bonds. I went in the bedroom and when I came out I saw he had revived. He was on his feet and struggling to open the door; before I could reach him he fell back."

scrap, but nobody is insisting that we cut out anything, and nobody has as yet really taken the trouble to see that it is collected if we do.

It is in these margins of luxury and waste, not in the essential weapons we are afraid, meaning that we must first cut the surplus to make the extra weapons that we need.

The formula that you can't fight today's war with tomorrow's weapons is an even more dangerous symptom of sleepwalking. The plain truth is that everybody is fighting today's wars with the weapons of yesterday. The planes, guns, tanks, ships that are now in service were designed and put into production 12, 18 and even 24 months ago. It is the fact, of course, that what we decide to produce today will not reach the fighting front this season, that some of it may not reach the fighting front for quite some time to come. But that is precisely the reason why, in addition to doing the utmost with what we have today, we should also be doing the utmost today to have better weapons tomorrow. The very fact that it takes time to design and produce tomorrow's weapons is the most urgent of all reasons for starting now.

Certainly it takes judgment, as well as vision and audacity, to prepare today the right weapons for tomorrow. But that is just what it takes to win this war; sound judgment in men who have bold hearts and seeing minds. If men of that sort do not come to the top, if they are not pulled to the top by our leaders and pushed to the top by the people, we shall never get the initiative in this war. We shall always be surprised by the Japanese Zero planes and Rommell's anti-tank equipment.

Layman's Business

This sort of thing is the layman's business in this war. It is not for us to say when or where the offensive blows shall be struck. It is not for us to choose the weapons for the fighting men. But it is our business to insist that we exploit to the limit our superior resources, instead of using them to obtain relatively mediocre results with comparatively small sacrifice. It is our business to insist that the way to use our advantages to win the war is to use the last ounce of our surplus to do the things that are unexpected and that our enemies can not match. It is our business to clear a path through all the deadwood, the red tape and the rubber stamps for the brave, the bold and the enterprising.

The men who can carry the ball are the men who are preparing tomorrow's weapons and tomorrow's tactics and tomorrow's war plans today. The men who have been losing this war and will continue to lose it are the men who are now thinking up answers to the things our enemies made ready to do a year. They are the men who did not build the escort and the Germans were building the submarines, who did not build cargo planes while the Germans were encircling the Russians and making ready to close the Burma road. These are the gentlemen who do not think worth our while to prepare the weapons of tomorrow.

Analyst Views War's Effect on British Empire

By DE WITT MacKENZIE
Wide World War Analyst

The world-shaking crisis developing over the Indian nationalist demand of absolute freedom from Britain gives added point to the following letter from Memphis, Tenn., regarding the stability of the British empire.

"Why you and other military experts continue to write as though England can win the war is beyond my understanding. England's true objective is to save the British empire as a whole. Unless England is successful in that purpose she cannot win the war."

Before we can answer, we must define "empire." Webster's new International Dictionary says it is "characterized by the supremacy of a stronger over the weaker members of a confederacy, or over its confederates, conquests and colonies."

That's clear enough, and viewing the query from this standpoint the answer very definitely is "yes." As a matter of fact we're a bit late in announcing such a conclusion, for the empire has been "breaking up," with the collaboration of Britain, for a couple of generations.

The British imperial conference of 1926 in London, defined the relations of Great Britain and the dominions (Canada, the commonwealth of Australia, New Zealand and the Union of South Africa) in this manner:

"They are autonomous communities with the British empire, equal in status, in no way subordinate one to another in any respect to their domestic or external affairs, though united by a common allegience to the crown and freely associated as members of the British commonwealth of nations."

That declaration was formalized in the passage of the statute of Westminster in 1931 by parliament. It means that the mother country agreed that these four great dominions were absolutely free and that they were equal in all respects with her.

The bond which holds together the already wholly independent parts of the British "empire" is slender but strong. What the future will bring we cannot foresee, but it may just as easily be a strengthening as a weakening of the bond.

Circus To Replace Many Animals Lost in Fire

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Aug. 6—Some of the animals lost in the menagerie fire will be replaced by the time the circus opens in Akron tomorrow, according to Henry Ringling North, vice president of the "greatest show on earth."

Three camels, only beasts to survive bad burns which brought death to 39 other non-performing animals, were shot early today to end their suffering.

North said he expected replacement animals would come from zoos all over the country which had previously received many gifts from the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey organization.

New Forty-Passenger Bus Operating at War Plant

Used To Shuttle Men and Equipment from One Job to Another; Other News from Area.

The army engineers have purchased and begun operation of a 40-passenger bus at the Scioto Ordnance Plant to shuttle men and equipment from one job to another within the plant boundaries, Major John S. Sears, commanding officer, has announced.

The bus was purchased through the office of Major Robert Lockridge, area engineer, and will be operated over the area on a regular schedule in the interests of promoting efficiency in the movement of both workers and small equipment.

Work Under Way On 3 More Dormitories

Three more dormitories are under construction at the administration area of the ordnance plant. When completed they will bring the total to six, each capable of housing some 175 workers. The three already built are now occupied by offices of the Hunkin-Conkey Construction Co., the army engineers and Holabird & Root, architect-engineers. However, they can be converted easily into dormitories for plant workers when their use as offices during the plant construction period is completed. It is expected the new dormitories will be made available to workers when completed and possibly will be in use in time to serve some of the construction workers.

Hospital Facilities Offered to Community

The Scioto Ordnance Plant commanding officer has offered Marion's civilian defense medical service unit the use of the ordnance plant's hospital supplies and facilities in the event of any emergency that would overtax the facilities in the city.

A letter containing the offer has been sent to Dr. H. K. Mouser chief of the emergency medical service of Marion's civilian defense organization.

Roads in Area Get Top Coating

Main roads in the Scioto Ordnance Plant area are getting a coat of black-top material. Driveways approaching the administration building already have been coated, and within the next 10 days the section of the Marion-Williamsport road leading to the administration building will be similarly treated.

These and other roads bearing a heavy volume of traffic have been shrouded in continuous clouds of dust during busy periods of the day. Surface treatment with black-top material, however, is limited because road material use has been limited for the duration.

Public Reminded About Camera, Firearms Ban

Major Sears, commanding officer, today called attention again to strict regulations prohibiting persons entering the Scioto Ordnance Plant from having a camera or firearms in their possession or in their automobiles.

Guards are under strict orders to seize any cameras found in possession of persons on the grounds. In these cases film in the camera will be developed and, if the negatives pass military censorship, the film and camera will be returned to the owner.

However, persons taking cameras or firearms into the area are subject to punishment that may include a year's imprisonment and a $1,000 fine.

Safety Regulations To Be Enforced

Major Sears today issued an order throughout the ordnance plant area insisting on compliance with the safety regulations set up to safeguard workers, especially calling attention to the rules regarding traffic.

Workers ignoring the speed limit are subject to dismissal, he said. Non-employes making calls at the plant area likewise will be obliged to obey the regulations.

DRAFT

fully appreciate the necessity of careful attention to the matter of occupational deferment.

He urged more thorough attention to deferments in the future and asserted that the armed forces and the army of war workers must be treated with equal consideration and justice.

Urges Study of Rules

Similarly, Lt. Nolan urged employers to familiarize themselves with all aspects of the selective service act, and especially to those rules and regulations which apply to occupational deferment.

Lt. Nolan presented a brief resume of the recent changes in the dependency clauses of the act. The most important and recent, he said, is that stipulation which bars from dependency deferment considerations all men married after the declaration of war Dec. 8, 1941.

In elaborating, Lt. Nolan said in the case of marriage between the date the selective service act became law (Sept. 16, 1940) and Dec. 8, 1941, no deferment on the grounds of dependency would be granted or even considered if "selection was imminent." Lt. Nolan said it is admitted the "imminent selection" phase is somewhat vague but that its interpretation is left entirely to each local board, as that body is the one most capable of determining how imminent selection may have been at the time of marriage.

Urges Early Action

Lt. Nolan directed employers' attention to the fact that requests for occupational deferment for their employes should be on file with the board regardless of present dependency or other deferment status. "Inasmuch as the present situation gives rise to the possibility of change in status over night," he said, "such requests should be on file right now. If a registrant's class is changed and an occupational deferment request might have entered the consideration but was not on file, then the employer has no right to appeal, even though he may rush in the board office the next day with the request."

Lt. Nolan pointed out the difference between the dependency classes, 3-A and 3-B. The first, he said, embodies dependency only as the factor, while the second (3-B) includes the dependency factor as well as the war worker factor.

Seek Cooperation

Both speakers called attention to the fact that employer cooperativeness in the matter of filing careful and considered requests, or not filing if there is no real need to do so, will be of prime importance in helping solve the industrial draft problem.

A short question and answer period followed the meeting. Chief point brought out in this period was presented by Col. Spencer, who answered a local manufacturer's question by asserting the only basis the draft officials are concerned with in determining a man's necessity to war work is his skill in that work and how tehnical that skill is.

Mrs. Roosevelt Disavows Left Wing Faction

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 6 — Disavowing any support of the left wing of the American Labor party and in so doing making one of her rare statements on foreign affairs, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt says:

"I do not wish to be controlled in this county by an American group that, in turn, is controlled in Russia and Russia's interests."

The President's wife expressed this attitude in a letter rebuking Eugene P. Connolly, ALP left wing leader, for his alleged use politically of a previous statement of hers in which she indorsed the party as a whole.

Declaring, in her letter made public yesterday, that her indorsement of the party as a whole had been used in a leaflet during the current primary fight between the ALP right and left wings, she told Connolly:

"I do not wish you to use my name or my letter again in any publication whatsoever."

The need for furnished light housekeeping rooms for families is "terrific" he said.

The only available unfurnished homes registered yesterday were one at Waldo, one at Brush Ridge and one at Magnetic Springs.

War workers are reluctant to move into homes too far from the city, according to Mrs. Margaret Baker, homes registration supervising clerk. Mrs. Baker and Mrs. Clara Baldwin, senior clerk, are in charge of receiving registrations and applications.

Persons having living units available for Marion's influx of war workers are asked to register at the office, either personally or by telephoning 2297.

SECOND RESCUE MADE IN LAKE DISASTER

Man Saved After 73 Hours In Water.

By The Associated Press

STANDISH, Mich., Aug. 6—Another dramatic chapter in the Great Lakes' latest story of shipwreck and drownings unfolded today after the rescue of a second survivor from the tragic Sunday fishing cruise of 13 persons on Saginaw bay.

Coast guardsmen patrolling the bay for victims' bodies pulled Abraham La Bean, 32-year-old Bay City welder, from the water at 3:25 p. m. yesterday—a rescue that bordered on the miraculous, the guardsmen said, since he had been in the water 73½ hours.

A life jacket so water-logged that it weighed approximately 50 pounds when La Bean was rescued had kept the husky, six-footer afloat for three days and three nights from the time the fishing party's cruiser had struck a rocky reef and foundered.

Not long before, the body of La Bean's wife, Dorothy, 26, had been recovered. It was the ninth body to be found. The only other known survivor was 23-year-old Mrs. Dorothy Repkie, who swam seven miles to shore. Her husband, Louis, drowned.

British Bombers Return to Attacks on Ruhr

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Aug. 6—The RAF's big night bomber squadrons, determined on destroying Germany's arsenal in any weather, smashed at the Ruhr valley last night, the air ministry announced today.

The weather was bad and British sources said the night air operations were not on a large scale. The communique reported five raiders missing.

Two German fighter-bombers made a hoof-top attack with bombs and machine-guns on a British west country town last night. There also was slight enemy air activity over East Anglia and a predawn attack by two German planes later in the same area.

BUCYRUS CHILD DIES

in mind a steadily expanding demand for grain for the making of food for the armed services of both the United States and the other United Nations.

The Chief Executive emphasized that meanwhile the manufacture of synthetic rubber from oil and grain would continue "without interruption."

As for synthetic rubber processes, the Chief Executive said they were in a "state of flux" and that it was impossible to determine in advance which eventually would prove to be the most desirable.

Mr. Roosevelt said that the bill to set up a separate agency, which would have been charged with making available sufficient rubber for military and civilian needs, would have been empowered to obtain any necessary materials and would have received priority over all private plants engaged in war production.

Obviously, Mr. Roosevelt said, it is only after all reasonable military requirements have been met that civilian needs "can even be considered."

Yet the vetoed bill, he asserted, provided that civilian needs for rubber—even for "joy-riding"—should receive consideration.

traffic and commercial counsels which were not involved in the wage dispute leading to the strike of 2,100 plant council members.

Hudson, whose unaffiliated union is the Ohio Federation of Telephone Workers, said he had arranged to meet today with F. M. Stephens, operating vice president of the Ohio Bell Telephone Co., in an effort to iron out the situation which threatens to cripple telephone communications in northeastern Ohio.

Labor Secretary Frances Perkins certified the strike to the WLB late yesterday, but the board immediately notified those involved that it "will not consider the merits of this dispute as long as the strike continues. The board expects that, as loyal citizens, the employes of the company will immediately end this strike and return to work."

Hudson explained that his council is composed of maintenance, installation and repair employes who seek wage increases commensurate with the 44-cent daily raise given "Little Steel" on wages now ranging from $20 to $58 weekly.

Each Works Separately

"While we are one federation," Hudson went on, "the three councils are separate autonomous unions. We work closely in harmony, but each works separately in negotiations. Our problems are different because our work is different.

"Now, according to these telegrams, the WLB has thrown our three cases into one classification. That is impossible because of the great differences not only in our problems, but in the status of our cases with the company.

"We cannot do anything under present conditions but continue our strike. When the situation is clarified, we will be in a position to consider our future action," he added.

The company reported some operators had refused to pass picket lines after the strike started at 7 a. m. yesterday, but said normal service had been maintained on long distance and toll service. Local service was not hampered.

Estimates of those on strike were 1,100 in the Cleveland area and 1,000 in the rest of the populous section, including 280 in Akron and 230 in Youngstown. Other cities involved were Canton, Alliance, Massillon, East Palestine, Lisbon, Niles, Ravenna, Kent, Columbiana, Girard, Chagrin Falls, Painesville, Mentor, Burton, Chesterland, Kirtland and Willoughby.

New Cultivation Method Is Boon To Beet Growers

By The Associated Press

FREMONT, O., Aug 5—Fre[illegible] a leading midwestern sugar [illegible] center, has come up with a cross-cultivator which farm experts say is one of the greatest improvements in several years.

It can be used to thin beets regardless of the height of their foliage, something which has been sought by the industry for many years. It was designed by A. C. Joost, Fremont manager of the Great Lakes Sugar Co., and L. R. Kranz of Amsden, O., a company field man.

An ingenious device easily made from an ordinary cultivator, the new tool will cut in half the large amount of hand labor required in growing sugar beets. In addition to reducing work in thinning beets the cultivator cuts by 30 per cent the later hand work required by a crop.

With the farm labor shortage more acute, this new method of cultivating offers a bright ray of hope, Joost said. Inexperienced help, such as high school students, now can be used for thinning beets.

Joost said that one western state was forced to plow under 1,000 acres of sugar beets this spring because labor was not available to handle the crop. That acreage should have produced enough sugar to last 12,600,000 persons for a week. Joost believes his cross-cultivator could have eliminated that waste.

It aeriates the soil to a far greater extent that ordinary cultivating, according to agricultural agents, making for larger beets, bigger yields and more sugar content. The new device destroys weeds and leaves a cleaner field than has been possible with hand work. It leaves fewer and sturdier plants in each block.

Sugar beet growers who have tried out the cross-cultivator say it will remove many of the hazards and the element of chance connected with sugar beet production.

Good growing seasons often have been wasted partially because the beets grew so rapidly that sufficient labor was unavailable to care for them properly. Beet fields which have been cross-cultivated can stand two or three weeks longer before the final hand-thinning without ill effects.

While the device was perfected here and used on 400 acres of the 12,000 in the Fremont area, it already has been given to the industry as a whole.

In commenting on the success in operation, the two developers say: "We've known for years it was what we needed and thought it could be done. We just kept tinkering around and finally got what we wanted."

Eight O'clock Coffee comes exclusively from Brazil—a long, hard sea journey. Because of fewer ships to carry coffee, you may sometimes notice a shortage of this famous blend. But this is wartime and the ships are needed to transport men and materials to far-flung battle fronts. A&P world's largest coffee merchant, is doing everything possible to supply the demand for Eight O'clock Coffee. Adequate supplies, however, of Red Circle and Bokar Coffee are available. Both of these blends contain liberal amounts of fine Colombian Coffee—and because the journey from Colombia is shorter than the one from Brazil, more Colombian coffee is available. Treat your family to one of these finer, fresher coffees this very day. Remember—every pound is customer ground exactly right for your own coffee-maker. You get all the fine flavor of this "pick of the plantation coffee."

Salvage Crews To Comb Lakes for Sunken Ships

WPB Encourages Raising of Lost Vessels To Supply Steel Mills with Much Needed Scrap Metal.

By DAVID J. WILKIE

DETROIT, Aug. 6 — (Wide ...)—The depths and the ... of the Great Lakes that ... claimed thousands of ships ... an untold number of lives ... LaSalle sailed his famed ... Griffen from Niagara to ... Bay and to her doom in ... have begun to contribute to ... war production effort of 1942.

Scraping out precious scrap ... essential to the uninterrupted operation of the nation's steel mills, the special projects salvage section of the war production board is giving impetus to salvage operations on all the wrecks that can be raised.

In addition to scrap it expects to find that a number of craft, once brought to the surface, can be restored to cargo-carrying use-fulness.

There may be only a few of these but none will be overlooked.

If we can put back into service a freighter that would cost upwards of a million dollars to build new, it would be distinctly worth while in the war effort, wouldn't it?" asked Thomas Litle, Jr., director of the salvage section.

A few days ago Litle and William J. Spicer, his assistant, saw the first of the old ships, victims of wind, explosions or other mishap, brought to the scrap pile here. It was the battered and twisted hull of the oil tanker J. Oswald Boyd which foundered in Upper Lake Michigan in 1936 while carrying a cargo of more than 900,000 gallons of gasoline.

1200 Tons of Scrap

Out of the ship, which looked as though its superstructure had been blasted away by gunfire, the Great Lakes Steel Corporation expects to reclaim more than 1,200 tons of metal. Under ceiling prices the scrap metal brings $17 a ton.

The entire shipwreck salvaging project is expected by WPB experts to yield upwards of 30,000 tons of scrap metal within the next two years. Before winter closes the locks and navigation generally, the salvage section experts hope to bring down several craft lost off desolate Keweenaw Point in Lake Superior during the last decade and more.

One of these is the steel-hulled 438-foot City of Bangor which went down Nov. 30, 1926, while carrying a cargo of automobiles. The WPB representatives declined to even guess at the volume of scrap the wreck might yield, beyond pointing out that it had a carrying capacity of 5,600 tons.

Hundreds Are Located

Hundreds of the ships which went down in the lakes in the days before storm warnings aided navigation never have been located. All those whose locations are known have been listed by the salvage section.

While the section is not greatly interested in old wooden hulls, it is checking on the salvage value of all craft. The boilers and propellers of some of these vessels would yield considerable scrap where the cost of raising them is not too great.

One of the richest cargoes ever to go down in a lake mishap was in the hold of the steamer Pewabic, which had 300 tons of copper and other valuable material aboard when it sank August 9, 1865, following a collision with the steamer Meteor, off Thunder Bay, Lake Huron. The crash carried 125 persons to death. Many attempts at salvaging hav been made in the more than three quarters of a century since the tragedy, but lying in about 200 feet of water the Pewabic is not easily accessible.

One salvaging operation in 1918 brought up 72 tons of the copper, but the cost of the undertaking was too great to justify it, and the WPB salvage experts aren't thinking seriously now of attempting to recover the cargo.

Others on List

Among the ships the WPB salvage experts believe may be brought up and reconditioned for service are the steamer Novadoc, a 253-foot pulpwood carrier, and the 360-foot sand boat Material Service.

The Novadoc went down in Lake Michigan, off Pentwater, Mich., in the storm of Armistice day, 1940, after breaking in two. The Material Service carried 15 men to death when it sank in a storm off South Chicago, July 29, 1936.

The officials of the salvage section make it clear that the WPB neither finances nor supervises actual salvaging operations. It seeks out the wrecks and encourages commercial salvage companies to undertake the operations, brings owners and possible purchasers of the scrap metal together and aids in details connected with clearing title to the abandoned vessels.

At the same time the board has requisitioning power under the law, where owners or others interested in the disposition of the hulls might not be disposed to cooperate. In such cases the owner would be paid half the appraised value of the wreck and sue for the remainder.

To date the board hasn't had to use its requisitioning power.

'Liza Finally Gets Her Name in the Papers

By The Associated Press

RIPLEY, O., Aug. 5—'Liza, the slave who's supposed to have crossed the ice in the 1850's to escape her master, finally got her picture in the paper today.

'Liza, as the story goes, came ashore from the south at this town. So the Ripley Bee, in a centennial edition published today, spread 'Liza's picture over the front page with this explanation:

"'Liza didn't get a line in any newspaper when she crossed the ice at Ripley, so we're turning over the entire front page of this centennial edition to her and her daring feat, which has become the biggest story in the history of Ripley."

St. Louis Blanks Cincinnati, 5 to 0, as Beazley Mows Down Red Batters

Cards Turn In Good Batting Performance To Help Clinch Game; Pitcher Fans 8 Red Batsmen.

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, Aug. 6—Cincinnati's Reds take a day off today to meditate on how Johnny Beazley fanned them down for the St. Louis Cardinals last night.

Tomorrow they take on the Chicago Cubs in another night game, the first of a four-game series in three days.

Johnny's 5-0 win was part mastery by Johnny Beazley, part straight hitting by the Cardinals, and part Cincinnati butterfingers. He struck out eight Reds — Eric Tipton, Frank McCormick, and Ival Goodman in order in the second inning.

Jimmy Brown hit Bucky Walters' first pitch for a double and Harry Walker caught the second for a single, driving Brown home with all the Cards needed. However, Walker was out on the third, White to Goodman, a liner by Ken Sears, a single and base on balls by Stan Musial, and an infield single by Walker Cooper produced three runs.

McCormick's fumble on a thrown ball, a sacrifice and a double by Lloyd Waner made it five for the Cards in the sixth inning.

Bert Haas and Eddie Joost also contributed an error apiece to the St Louis cause, but they damaged nothing but the Reds' fielding records.

Gene Thompson took over for the last six innings and allowed only two hits and one unearned run, but the Reds were helpless before the young Cardinal rookie.

Corby Davis Signs To Play with Cleveland

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Aug. 6 — Corby Davis has signed his football contract with the Cleveland Rams and probably will be in the fullback spot when the Rams play a warm-up exhibition against the Pittsburgh Steelers at East Liverpool the night of Aug. 21.

Davis, 200-pound All-American from Indiana university, will be playing his fourth season.

The game with the National leaguers from Pittsburgh, announced yesterday, will take place less than two weeks after the Rams open practice at Hiram.

Snatches of Sports

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
Wide World Sports Columnist

NEW YORK, Aug. 6—Short ration rustic — so many high school coaches have left Oklahoma for the armed services that the state high school athletic association has put out a manual, intended for women, on how to coach . . and in Texas they made special arrangements at the annual football clinic for school superintendents looking for coaches instead of trying to find places for jobless coaches.

Wild Cotton Tale—We have the word of the Arizona U. press bureau for this one: Seems that when George Genung, Arizona outfielder who plays during the summer for the El Centro Dons of the Tucson semi-pro league, noticed a wild rabbit ambling across the outfield one night, he forgot all about the game and made a diving catch of the bunny....We hadn't heard about any meat shortage down there, either.

Today's Guest Star — Howard Preston, Cleveland News: "It must be comforting to the St. Louis Cardinals to have his torians recall that the Dodgers blew a late season 17-game lead and the pennant to the Cards back in 1930. And it must also be very comforting to the Dodger management to recall that those 1930 players no longer are playing with Brooklyn."

Recovered Fumbles — Because 16,000 officers and men soon will be in camp at the Lincoln, Neb., air base, Coach Glenn Presnell plans to have nothing but secret practices for his Nebraska footballers this fall ...There might be some alumni or amateur scouts of rival colleges on hand....Michigan figures its ticket allotment for the Notre Dame at South Bend Nov. 14 will be sold out before the season starts...When West Virginia plays Michigan State this fall, it will be "4-H club and Future Farmers of America" day at East Lansing.... Sounds like a threat to players who miss assignments.

COMPLICATED SETUP

Stoltz To Fight Featherweight Champ to Get Chance at Angott.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 6—Silly as it sounds, Allie Stolz takes on featherweight champion Chalky Wright of Los Angeles in Madison Square Garden tonight with the lightweight title as his goal.

Wright's championship, recognized by the New York Athletic Commission but not by the National Boxing Association, will not be at stake. But a victory for Stoltz virtually would assure him a shot at the 135-pound crown, won by Sammy Angott.

Stoltz has met Angott once and lost to him by a decision so close that the Newark battler figures the title will be his the next time he can qualify for a bout with the champ.

Wright also will be prepping for a title bout tonight since he will defend his 126-pound championship against Charley (Lulu) Constantino Sept. 25.

Cleveland Having Trouble Keeping Its Pitchers Busy

By The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 6—The Cleveland Indians are experiencing "pitcher problems" here, but they are not the type which usually worry a manager in his first year.

Four Redskin starters are ready to hurl in today's twin bill while the fifth, Chubby Dean, captured his eighth victory of the season by beating the Browns, 8 to 5, last night.

Freshman Manager Lou Boudreau can call on Mel Harder, Al Milnar, Al Smith or Jim Bagby to work this afternoon, and from their attitudes it appears the only squawks come from those who think they don't work often enough.

Boudreau has called on Vernon Kennedy and rookie Red Embree to start several games, but they have mostly shared relief roles with Harry Eisenstat, veteran Joe Heving and Tom Ferrick.

Dean's twirling last night was not as effective as it has been, for he allowed 10 hits in 7 2-3 innings, and had to be relieved by Eisenstat. Harry had no trouble retiring the first three men he faced, but after two were out in the ninth session he ran into difficulties, and Ferrick retired the final batter.

Five Indian blows of assorted sizes in the fourth frame brought six markers, enough to win the game although the Browns outhit the Tribe, 12-11.

Columbus, Cincinnati Legion Teams To Clash

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 6 — Unbeaten Columbus clashes with Cincinnati in the state American Legion junior baseball tournament today. Springfield meets Cleveland.

Dick Hoover, 16, pitched his second one-hitter as Columbus defeated Cleveland 6 to 0 yesterday. Cincinnati eliminated Defiance 5 to 2.

Pitching Still Big League Mainspring; Five of Seven Games Are Shutouts

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Pitching — as it is the mainspring of baseball — put yesterday it was back at the single worries in the major leagues.

In the greatest one-day concentration of pitching prowess in a season, five of the seven games played ended in shutouts and not a single home run was produced.

Rookie Max Macon, pitching his first complete game since joining the Brooklyn Dodgers, muffled the New York Giants to two hits in winning 4-0.

3-Hit Games

John Beazley of the St. Louis Cardinals and Cpl. (Tex) Hughson of the Boston Red Sox each hurled three-hitters, the former trimming the Cincinnati Reds, 5-0, and the latter stopping the Philadelphia Athletics, 7-0.

But Hal Newhouser pitched five-out ball and got in the rarest game of all as Don Kolloway stole home to give the Chicago White Sox a 1-0 decision over the Detroit Tigers.

The only other American league game was the one contest that developed into a batting melee, Cleveland during the St. Louis Browns 6-5 in a night tilt with a six-run rally in the fourth inning after being held to one hit for three innings by Denny Galehouse.

Night Games

All the other National league activity also was at night. In one of the best games Truett (Rip) Sewell of the Pittsburgh Pirates blanked the Chicago Cubs, 3-0.

Although he didn't get a shutout, Tommy Hughes pitched five-hit ball at Philadelphia to lead the Reds to their second straight victory over the Boston Braves, 5-2.

Weather kept the Yankees idle at Washington.

FREMONT SHUTS OUT MAIRON HAWKS 7-0

Boosts to Five the Number of Wins Over Hawks.

The Fremont ball club, in an eight-inning contest at Lincoln park last night, shut out the Marion Hawks by a score of 7 to 0 to boost to five the number of straight wins from the Marion nine.

The winning pitcher, Miller, hurled a five-hitter as against Edington's 10-hit game. Miller's strike-out record also bested that of Edington, the winner chalking up seven to his credit, while Edington got only 2.

There are still four more games to be played between the Hawks and Fremont in league competition.

RED BIRDS 1 GAME OUT OF FIRST PLACE

By The Associated Press

Eastern members of the American association, all in the title running, get their chance to overhaul three western representatives beginning tonight when they open long home stands.

However, one eastern club jumped the gun last night. It was Columbus, the only eastern member now rating a place among the association's leaders. Columbus beat Milwaukee, 6 to 4, by rallying for five runs in the late innings.

It was the Red Birds' 13th victory in 18 games with Milwaukee, leaving them just a single game behind pace setting Kansas City and dropping Milwaukee a game and a half behind the leader.

Erie and Dayton Set for Mid-Atlantic Series

By The Associated Press

DAYTON, O., Aug. 6 — Erie meets Dayton here tonight in the first contest of a four-game series for second place in the Mid-Atlantic league.

Two percentage points separated the teams last night after Zanesville defeated the Ducks 4 to 2 to put idle Erie back in second place, taken over 24 hours earlier by Dayton. Canton shut out Springfield 4 to 0. The Erie-Charleston game was postponed.

TONIGHT'S TUSSLER

Rufus Jones, above, and Ned Billins, both well known to Marion wrestling fans and both tough mat men, will meet tonight in the main go at the Armory.

Both men have reputations for roughness and the bout promises to provide plenty of all-out rough-and-tumble.

The one-hour semi-final will bring together Flash Chiffo and the Russian Ivan Kalmikoff, both clean wrestlers, in a fast match. A tag team engagement against Billins and Steele the last time Kalmikoff was here cost him the match.

In the opening match tonight, a one-hour event, Sailor Olsen and Leo Jensen will be featured in a rematch. Last week Jensen entered the ring with a bad leg which he sustained as a result of an accident before the match. Olsen took advantage of the weakness to score a fall with a leg hold. The rematch is scheduled to get under way at 8:30 p. m.

NATIONAL FOOTBALL LEAGUES LOOK FOR NEW FALL TALENT

Clubs Scouring Country for Replacements for 100 Veterans in Army.

By The Associated Press

MILWAUKEE — Young men who play football and are in position to do so might find ... employment this fall ... trying to one of the National league professional clubs. ... clubs are scouring the country for new talent to replace ... 100 veterans lost to the armed forces.

... have come up with ... of lesser leagues, others ... signed men from small ... who ordinarily wouldn't have been considered.

Although the season is more than a month away, the Philadelphia Eagle squad already has moved into Wisconsin, the Eagles' chief training ground, and four other National league clubs begin drills within the next few days in Badger cities. They are starting earlier than usual in order to break in new men.

Coach Earle (Greasy) Neel of Philadelphia had 31 candidates on hand when the first drill was called Tuesday at Two Rivers. Only six were veterans of last year.

The at Green Bay, where they always have a leading contender, a squad of 11 men is getting in early work before regular practice sessions start Monday. The team has lost 15 members of last year's squad, including the veteran fullback, Clarke Hinkle, and halfback Hal Van Every, but it still has a great passing combination in Cecil Isbell and Don Hutson.

The champion Chicago Bears, who meet the college All-Stars in Chicago Aug. 21 start training at St. John's military academy at Delafield Saturday, with only about 16 veterans returning. Missing will be such stars as George McAfee and Norm Standlee, but returning are Clyde (Bulldog) Turner, big center; Sid Luckman, one of the leagues best quarterbacks, and fullback Bill Osmanski.

At Superior, Wis., they are preparing a welcome for a squad of 40 or more New York Giants expected Thursday. At Waukesha, the Chicago Cardinals will begin training Aug. 10.

Most of the National league veterans who are in the armed services will be on the eastern or western All-Stars who will play National league teams this fall.

Former Pitcher in Big Leagues Visits in Marion

A former big league baseball pitcher, Cleon Webb, known personally by several local residents, was in Marion yesterday with O. H. Neimeyer, game warden for this district.

Mr. Webb, now an administrative official connected with the Pittman-Robertson Wildlife Habitat Restoration project, was captain of his college baseball team in 1905 at Ohio Wesleyan. He played for three years there under the coaching of Branch Rickey.

After his college days, he played ball with professional clubs at Newark (in the Ohio State league), Grand Rapids (in the Central league), with the Pittsburgh Pirates in 1911, then with Indianapolis and again in the Central league with Springfield and Dayton.

Webb, who now works out of Columbus on the conservation projects, holds a master's degree from Ohio State university and was formerly a school superintendent.

Phil Marchildon's Pitching Is Envy of Major League Managers

Phillies' Ace Pitcher Has Chalked Up a Record of 13 Wins This Season.

By STEVE O'LEARY
Associated Press Sports Writer

BOSTON — Phil Marchildon's name won't be found anywhere among the American league's leading pitchers but every other major league manager would part with a couple of eye teeth to have the Canadian-born ace of the Philadelphia Athletics on his side.

They might do all right at that in return for the pair of ivories, they'd be collecting one of the outstanding pitchers in the major leagues, even though he has been toiling in virtual privacy with the tenants of the American circuit cellar.

Take Phil and Roger Wolff away from the A's this season and they would be tunneling deep enough in the standings to come up somewhere around the Coastal Plains league. Phil has won 13 games and Roger 10, more than one-half of the 42 games the Athletics have marked down this season on the black ink side of the ledger.

An Accomplishment

That mystic 13, incidentally, makes Marchildon the first American league bowler to gain that many decisions this season, an accomplishment the more noteworthy when one considers how often his team has labored in a losing cause. He has been defeated only eight times—another more than creditable feat when one reflects on what punching bags the once-mighty Athletics have become for the rest of the league.

His four-hit verdict against the Boston Red Sox Tuesday gave him two victories and one defeat against them this year, equalling his record against them for the entire season in 1941.

Got Sox's Number

The Sox blasted him from the box in the opening game of the season but he's had their number ever since. He's been impartial, too, beating them both at home and on the road and every one of the heavy hitting Red Sox array concedes that he's one of the toughest pitchers in the business to face when he's really pouring it in there.

Phil is inclined to be really wild at times, as his six bases on balls, a hit batter and two wild pitches Tuesday proved. But no one can laugh off his amazing record and such distinguished service makes him the envy of other big league managers.

They needn't worry about their eye teeth, though.

Phil has a date with the Canadian army and expects a call almost anytime for further distinguished service in a greater cause.

$4 Annually Minimum Charge in Proposed Sewer Fee Setup

Income Would Go in Special Fund for Sewage Treatment Plant Work or Sewer Repairs.

This is the third and final of a series of articles. The Star is publishing to present details of the proposed sewer rental fee now before council. Views of city officials who have recommended the legislation are also presented.

* * *

Marion's proposed sewer rental fee legislation would assess an annual charge of $4 against all one-family homes in Marion that are connected to the city sewer system. This figure also is the minimum charge for any connection to the sewer system.

The ordnance states that it is a measure to provide funds for the "maintenance, operation and control of the sewage system and the treatment works."

It authorizes the public service director to "manage and control the sewer system ... in a safe, healthful, economical and efficient manner." He also is empowered to prepare any regulations that may become necessary to accomplish these duties.

The sewer fees are to be collected over a five-year period. Unless reenacted by council five years hence, the fee legislation automatically would expire.

Use Limited

Funds from this source could not be used to build extensions on existing sewers. Use of the funds is limited to "payment of the cost and expenses of the management, maintenance, operation and repair of the sewage system and sewage treatment works." Any surplus is to be used for the enlargement or the replacement of the sewage treatment works or for the payment of interest on any debt incurred for the maintenance, operation and construction of a sewage system or treatment works.

The money would be deposited monthly with the city treasurer in a separate "sewer rental fund" subject to appropriation by council and subject to the order of the service director.

The schedule of rates follows:

Dwellings and apartments—one family, $4 a year; two-family, $7.50; four-family, $15; for each additional family on same connection, $3.75.

Hotels—each room with toilet or bath, 50 cents; each public toilet, per stool, $4.

Lodges, stores, restaurants, offices and mercantile establishments—private toilets, $2 per stool; public toilets, $4 per stool; kitchen sinks, $4 each; slop sinks, $2 each.

Factories and shops—each toilet, $2 per stool.

Churches—each toilet, $2 per stool.

Schools—grade schools, $10 per building; junior high schools and high schools, $20 per building.

Hospitals—each toilet, $2.

Public buildings — private toilets, $2; public toilets, $4.

For special cases not covered by this schedule, rates will be established by council upon recommendation of the service director.

Collection System

Sewer rental fees would be collected on the following schedule: First ward, on the first day of June and December; Second ward, first day of May and November; Third ward, first day of April and October; Fourth ward, first day of March and September; Fifth ward, first day of February and August; Sixth ward, first day of January and July. A 10 per cent penalty would be added on fees not paid by the 15th of the month in which they are due.

Rental charges not paid within 90 days will be certified to the county auditor and added to the property owners' tax bill.

MARKET TRIES TO STOP SLIDE

Most Leaders, However, Fail To Get Steady Grip on Advance.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 6—Selected stocks got a finger-hold on recovery today but market leaders generally were unable to grasp advancing trends.

Depressing Russian war news and other confusing international symptoms were blamed mainly for enfilling the bidding urge. Light investment buying provided some support.

Bonds steadied. Commodities were mixed.

Occasional plus marks were shown by shares of U. S. Steel, Great Northern, Phelps Dodge, Texas Co., General Motors, U. S. Gypsum and International Harvester. In the wavering class were Anaconda, Standard Oil of Du Pont, Sears Roebuck and New Jersey, American Telephone, Owens-Illinois.

Market followers saw a faintly cheerful indicator in Washington reports that the senate might decide on more generous tax deductions for losses on investments than those provided in the house revenue bill.

MILK PRODUCTION METHODS SUGGESTED

County Agent Urges Watchful Handling of Animals.

OTTAWA, O.—Continued high milk production which is needed vitally in the war effort of the United States can be maintained with the present herds if the farmer is watchful and studious in handling the animals.

This was the opinion expressed today by L. C. Holtkamp, Putnam county agent. He pointed out that the increased consumption of milk by men in the armed forces, the Lease-Lend program and the need to maintain an emergency reserve have increased the demand for high production many fold.

High production per cow can not be obtained if cows are permitted to drop rapidly in production at any time, the agent pointed out. Consequently, he warned that farmers must make a daily check of their herds to be sure all cows are maintaining their standards of production or improving.

Those farmers who have good alfalfa mixtures to turn their cows into during July and August will have little difficulty in maintaining a high milk flow, he said. Those having Sudan grass to supplement their permanent pastures also will be in a favorable position.

Cows must have the roughage they want at all times. If the pasture does not supply this, it must come from elsewhere. It is good practice to offer cows supplementary roughage because if they need this extra food, they will take; if they don't need it, they will leave it alone.

WHEAT PRICES UP 2 CENTS IN RALLY

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 6 — Rallying two cents from early lows, the wheat market today staged a strong recovery. Most traders attributed it to a technical reaction as a result of drying up of selling orders followed by purchasing to cover previous short sales.

Buying came mostly from professional traders. Some mill and flour trade was reported, however, with dealers noting that open market prices are far below government loan rates, which is now tending to hold new wheat marketings to comparatively small proportions. Indications that the government may attempt to reduce the national acreage next season also attracted attention.

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

Doctors in War

THE ARMY and Navy still need some 15,000 doctors. But the air force may need as many as 20,000 to be trained in aviation medicine, according to the estimates of Dr. John F. Fulton of Yale university.

This will be a severe drain on the civilian medical profession and already we see evidences that our doctors are working harder than they have for many years. It is particularly notable in hospital practice. The government authorities allowed medical students to complete their courses and serve one year in a hospital as interns, but they did not allow time for resident services.

Most hospitals have a resident surgeon and a resident physician who do a great many of the routine tasks. I heard a surgeon talking of how he had to give his own intravenous injections now, and it meant a great deal of extra work for him. He wasn't complaining, but the pinch is beginning to be felt.

In re-distributing physicians for civilian work there is going to be considerable unhappiness. There is a Florida town, for instance, the population of which has jumped from 90 to 2,000, and there isn't a doctor in the place. The ratio of doctors to patients in New York is about 1 to 500. This will mean that doctors will have to be moved from larger cities to smaller ones.

One obstacle has been that the state boards of health still insist on a doctor's passing their examinations before he starts practice. This is pretty hard on a doctor who has been out of medical school 20 years. It might be helpful if states would abolish this rule and practice reciprocity for the duration.

The condition will not be made any better for many years. In my own medical school the navy medical service signed up about 75 out of the freshman class of 85. These men will not graduate until 1945, nor complete their hospital work until 1946. That means that only 10 physicians will enter civil practice in 1946 from that class, and the situation must be the same all over the country.

Young medical men and students come to me and ask what kind of experience they are going to get in the army or navy. Based on my own recollection, I should say very good. I was talking to a young surgeon the other day who has been in the army three months. He had done over 250 major operations in that time. If he had gone into private practice he would wait 10 years before he had that many to his credit.

While we are on the subject, the health of the draftees has given a good deal of worry, but the situation is not nearly as bad as it appears. Of those rejected, the largest number was for dental defects—168,000. Next came eyes—123,000. Next, heart trouble —96,000. Hernia caused 56,000 rejections; bad feet 36,000 and defective ears, 41,000, with only 26,000 for lung disease.

The average American soldier weighs 152 pounds. In World War I he weighed 142, and in the Civil War, 136.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

"YES, he is coming this way," I whispered to Mary, then added a hurried caution.

"Please do not speak again, any of you. I will talk to him when he gets here, and if I think any of you should be included in the conversation, I will manage it."

I could not watch Mary's face, for my whole attention was fixed upon the man making his way toward our table, but I knew that she, Olina and Stephen Redfield were all sharing my own tense excitement.

However, we all were busy with our food when the old man halted by our table. He spoke hesitantly, in excellent English with just the trace of a foreign accent.

"Please pardon me for this intrusion, if I am mistaken," he said, "but am I not speaking to Mrs. Richard Graham?"

He was looking directly at me, and I found it difficult to feign the interrogative though courteous indifference, for which his query called.

Invited to His Table

"Yes, I am Mrs. Richard Graham," I said, adding no word more, trying to give the impression that I would listen to him but wished him to be brief.

"I am afraid you will find it hard to forgive me, Mrs. Graham, for the request I am about to make," he said, "but please believe me, I trouble you only because I have just been given information which vitally concerns you, and which you should receive at once so that you may act upon it as you see fit."

There was impressive emphasis in his words and manner, but I told myself cynically that they probably were as false as his hair and beard. However, I already had determined on my course, and I spoke with a studied appearance of uninterested courtesy.

"Will you not sit down," I said, "while you tell me what you wish me to know?"

"I am desolated to refuse your very kind invitation," he said, "but there are vital reasons why I must speak to you by yourself. I am hoping that you will do me the honor of coming to my table while I tell you briefly what I must. I assure you that it will take but a few minutes."

Promises To Be Brief

I looked steadily at him for a moment, then rose leisurely. Stephen Redfield rose as a matter of course, and as he pulled back my chair I spoke to him as well as to Mary and Olina.

"Do excuse me for a few minutes," I said perfunctorily. "I shall not keep you long."

"I shall bring her back very shortly," the old man told them, bowing in an unmistakably foreign fashion. Then he ushered me to his own table and seated me with an elaborate courtesy which I felt uncomfortable must be attracting the attention of everyone in the restaurant.

But I sat down with apparent nonchalant composure, looked attentively at my companion and silently awaited any disclosure he wished to make.

Has Risked Much

"I never can be sufficiently grateful to you for this kindness, Mrs. Graham," he said, "I have risked much to get a chance to talk to you."

So solemn, so urgent was the man's voice that it cut through the prejudice his flamboyant white beard and luxuriant white hair—so obviously a disguise—had brought to me.

"I hope I shall not disappoint you," I said impulsively, and knew intuitively his eyes, which I could not see behind their thick colored glasses, had flashed and lightened at my words.

"I shall begin, then, with a question," he said, "which I hope will not startle you."

Nevertheless I was startled when he put his query, in tense, low tones.

"Is not one of the young ladies with you the Princess Olina of Transvania?" he asked.

The Stars Say—

For Friday, August 7

A DISCONCERTING and difficult day, with dangers and sudden issues of an unpredictable nature, is read from the predominant lunar and mutual aspects. There may be much gained by travel, agencies, communications as well as writings, publicity, advertising and promotional enterprises, but these should be pursued with equanimity and restraint and not jeopardized by violent, erratic or tempestuous acts. The emotional urges may impel to bursting all bonds of reason and common sense, and cause grief and regrets if not accidents. With car and discretion there might be pleasurable as well as profitable experiences.

Those whose birthday it is may be confronted by a year of mixed influences with all depending upon their own self-restraint. Reasonable and governed conduct should subdue a tendency to the erratic, impetuous, rash, defiant and resentful course of impulse, waywardness and indulgence. Writings, correspondence, advertising, promotions, travel, communications and kindred mercurial pursuits would prove profitable. Social and artistic affairs are under auspicious stimuli. Litigation should be satisfactory.

A child born on this day while artistic, versatile in many literary pursuits, and with business ability, yet should be given early restraint in control of self and emotions.
